Cabinet newcomers Marchand, Turner, Winters, Cote, Greene

OTTAWA (CP) — A massive shakeup of cabinet ministers and portfolios was announced Friday by Prime Minister Pearson.

He appointed five new members to fill vacancies created by electoral defeats and resignations and shuffled the duties of eight ministers.

Newcomers to the cabinet are:

● Robert H. Winters, a former Liberal cabinet minister back in politics after an eight-year absence, who will take over the big trade portfolio early in 1966.

● Jean Marchand, 47, the former Quebec labor leader, who takes over as immigration minister.

● J. J. Greene, 45, from Renfrew South, moving into agriculture.

● Jean-Pierre Cote, 39, from Longueuil, becoming postmaster-general.

● John Turner, 36, Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George, who will be a minister without portfolio.

Mr. Pearson, speaking at a press conference, said he also was proposing a far-reaching reorganization of the cabinet structure designed to adapt government machinery to new conditions and changing needs.

'Right Wing To Fore'

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson has disappointed French Canada and doomed the rest of the nation to economic drifting, former Conservative cabinet minister Alvin Hamilton charged last night.

He spoke on behalf of his party about the cabinet re-organization and appointments announced by the prime minister yesterday. Opposition leader Diefenbaker is on a holiday cruise in the Caribbean.

New Democrat Leader Tommy Douglas said Mr. Pearson has strengthened the "right wing element" of the cabinet.

He said the appointment of Mitchell Sharp as finance minister and Robert Winters as trade and commerce minister will "only serve to hasten American control of the Canadian economy."

He described Mr. Sharp and Mr. Winters as "continentalists" as opposed to former finance minister Walter Gordon whom he said was a "nationalist."

OLD BUS

"The prime minister has had the old bus overhauled. He's tacked on a few spare parts and replaced a flat tire. But the main test of whether it will work is still the man behind the wheel.

"It depends on the prime minister's ability to give direction to the government, set goals for it to follow, and ride herd on its ministers, to make sure they meet these goals," he said.

Mr. Douglas welcomed the establishment of the manpower department, as did Mr. Hamilton. Both said it should have been done long ago.

MAJOR POST

Mr. Hamilton said both new portfolios (manpower and resources and energy) were badly needed, but neither will satisfy the demands of the Quebec in-

Champs Home Today

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 7 space, champions boned up on tricky manoeuvres vital to a safe return to earth, then settled down for a long night's rest before a fiery homecoming today from man's longest space voyage.

Confident their tiny spacecraft's pesky electrical system will not fail, U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr. streaked into the 14th day of tracking network.

With 5,000,000 miles of space travel behind them, the two astronauts came down the home stretch feeling good and jovial.

"We're all quite impressed with how good you guys sound today," mission control advised them.

"We feel a lot better. . . ." Borman answered.

Dr. Charles Berry, the flight's medical director, said that from medical data relayed from the spacecraft to ground Borman and Lovell seemed in good health.

And, Berry said he felt that even though neither man has taken a step since climbing into the small spacecraft Dec. 4. They would be able to walk once on deck of the recovery ship.

Borman, the command pilot, is to fire his retro-rockets at 8:28 a.m. EST as the spacecraft heads over the Pacific on the 206th trip around the world. Earth's gravity will then grip the speeding craft for its splashdown 37 minutes later.

The pilots spent much of the day tidying up the craft, stowing equipment and other things used for the last two weeks.

Borman and Lovell took the day off at mid - afternoon and plan to be up and ready early for the end of their voyage.

"See you in the morning." Borman said before signing off for the day.

How the record — breaking astronauts look, feel and act after man's longest exposure to the strange world of space can provide the answer to a critical question: Can man live and work during great periods of time in the weightless environment?

The U.S. space agency released some of the movies and still pictures taken of the dramatic meeting by Gemini 6 pilots Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford.

The color movies depict the apparent ease with which the two black-and-white ships flew gracefully through space six to 10 feet from each other at 17,500 miles an hour.

For awhile, the Gemini 7 pilots, holders of every manned spaceflight record, feared a balky fuel cell system that provides electricity aboard the spacecraft might force them home a day early.

Monitors kept a close eye on the system throughout the night while the astronauts slept, then decided the problem was not serious enough to curtail the flight.

'I Am Not Perfect'

PARIS (CP) — Frenchmen gathered around television and radio sets Friday night to hear the last bid for support from President de Gaulle and left wing opponent Francois Mitterrand before Sunday's vote for the French presidency.

Both candidates were at their persuasive best.

"Here I am such as I am," the 75-year-old de Gaulle said. "I do not say I am perfect and that I am not my age. I in no way claim to know everything or to be able to do everything . . . but history has willed that together with the French people I have succeeded in certain undertakings . . ."

* * *

Mitterrand, 49-year-old Socialist and veteran politician, also told the voters the choice is clear. For him it was a decision between the "personal power" exercised for the last seven years by de Gaulle and a "republican regime" of all citizens.

Pullout Demand Dropped

U.S. GLIMPSES HANOI OFFER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has received through intermediaries a conditional offer from President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam to enter into negotiations for a peaceful settlement of the Vietnamese war.

Two conditions laid down by Ho now appear to U.S. officials here to be unacceptable. State Secretary Dean Rusk, at Johnson's direction, is seeking clarification.

The intermediaries also reported that Hanoi dropped its condition that the U.S. must get out of Viet Nam before negotiations can begin.

The White House said late Friday it has had no indication that North Viet Nam "is ready to conduct unconditional discussions."

Letters Exchanged

An exchange of letters involving Rusk and the Italian foreign minister, Amintore Fanfani, also president of the United Nations General Assembly, was released by the state department Friday.

Fanfani's letter, addressed to Johnson, reported the conditional peace offer which specified that a ceasefire would have to precede negotiations and appeared to require that the U.S. also would have to accept in advance Communist settlement terms as the basis for negotiations.

Shortly after the state department made the disclosure Johnson, at a Christmas tree lighting ceremony, said: "We declare once more our desire to discuss an honorable peace in Viet Nam." "We know that nothing is to be gained by further delay in talking."

The White House comment and Rusk's letter to Fanfani made clear that United States leaders are skeptical of the Hanoi offer. But officials said they will make every effort to arrive at an acceptable arrangement for negotiation.

In his letter dated Nov. 20, Fanfani reported that on Nov. 11 two Italians had met in Hanoi with President Ho and North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, and had been told that the North Vietnamese leaders strongly desired a peaceful solution to the war in Viet Nam.

Fanfani then reported a summary of the conditions and said he had been advised in writing by the intermediaries that "the government in Hanoi is prepared to initiate negotiations without first requiring actual withdrawal of the American troops" from South Viet Nam.

Four Points

Ho was quoted in Fanfani's report as saying "I am prepared to go anywhere; to meet anyone."

The advance Communist settlement terms, the so - called "four points," were laid down in March by the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong. In them, the Front demanded the United States withdraw all troops, material and bases from South Viet Nam; cancel its military alliance with Saigon; cease "all acts of war" against North Viet Nam; and then settle the dispute "in accordance with the program (of the Viet Cong) without any foreign interference.

Ho said that it would be necessary to have in advance "a declaration according to which the Geneva Agreements of 1954 will be taken as the basis for the negotiation."

The Geneva Agreements established the states of Viet Nam Laos and Cambodia in former French Indochina. They specified that those states were to be independent and free of foreign alliances.

A provision for the unification of North and South Viet Nam never was fulfilled.

Rhodesia

Britain Cuts Oil Flow

LONDON (CP)—Britain imposed an oil embargo on the breakaway colony of Rhodesia Friday, after long deliberation.

It was the harshest measure yet against the white-minority regime of Ian Smith, which unilaterally declared itself independent Nov. 11. The U.S. was expected to join shortly in the crippling embargo. Rhodesia, which imports its oil, uses about 280,000 tons a year.

The Queen signed the embargo order at a special Privy Council in Buckingham Palace, attended by top ministers except Prime Minister Wilson, who was conferring with President Johnson in Washington.

The order establishes stiff fines and prison sentences for any British national supplying or helping to supply oil to Rhodesia. Britain also set up an RAF airlift to keep oil moving to copper-producing, landlocked Zambia, which has been getting its oil from neighboring Rhodesia. The airlift has already begun.

'Right Step' Say Africans

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — The news that Britain has imposed an oil embargo against Rhodesia was welcomed by African delegates here as a step in the right direction.

Other reaction was less than whole - hearted, however. A diplomat, regarded as one of Britain's severest critics here, said: "It is not all that we want, but it is something."

Bitter Twist to War

Hill Tribes Revolt Against Saigon

SAIGON (UPI)—A tribal rebellion spread through the central highlands today and at least one American special forces camp was reported in rebel hands.

The revolt began late Friday night when mountain tribesmen, seeking autonomy, seized Gia Nghia, capital of Quang Duc province, about 110 miles northeast of Saigon, without wiring a shot.

Today the revolt spread to Pleiku and Pho Bon provinces and possibly to other areas.

"There has been fighting in numerous areas between the government and rebel forces and casualties thus far are considerable, government sources said.

Tribesmen also rebelled in at least three special forces camps. One, located at La Thien, fell to the rebels.

The situation at the other two camps, at Plei Mrong and Plei Djereng in Pleiku province, remained unclear.

Many of the special forces camps the United States has established in the central mountains employs hill tribesmen as scouts and strike forces to harrass the Communists.

The rebels, or at least some of them, were believed using American-supplied weapons.

Early today it was reported the tribesmen had lowered their flag at Gia Nghia and agreed to negotiate. But later reports indicated that fighting could break out any moment.

A Vietnamese military source said government soldiers were in position to lay siege to the provincial capital.

500 Fund's Grand Turkey Shoot

They're Gunning for Birds Today

Today is the day for scatter-gunners to shoulder their pieces and head for the Victoria Gun Club grounds on Metchosin Road at Albert Head.

The club has invited the public to participate in its annual turkey shoot for The Daily Colonist 500 Fund.

The shoot starts at 10 a.m. today and Sunday and each day ends when the last shooter leaves.

The club has provided 350 turkeys and 50 hams as prizes for the best shots in five classes.

There are classes for everyone from the expert to the gun-shy. Even those who don't own their own shotguns can participate—the club will provide the weapons.

Only clay pigeons get the blast.

Last year the club raised $300 for the fund, now in its ninth year. Every year the 500 poorest families in Greater Victoria receive from the fund an even share of the total, just before Christmas, to spend as they please.

Pearson Announces Big Shakeup

sources, and crime and corrections.

The cabinet switches involved in his new plan made for the largest cabinet shakeup in more than a decade.

Mr. Pearson said he will ask Parliament to establish a new department of manpower so that manpower policies could be co-ordinated.

The new department would take over sections of the labor and citizenship departments.

Mr. Marchand for the present would be minister of citizenship and immigration, later the minister for manpower when Parliament approved establishment of that department.

BIG SWITCH

Biggest switch, and the one most popularly predicted, puts Mitchell Sharp into the finance portfolio vacated last month by the resignation of Walter Gordon. Mr. Sharp had been trade minister since the Pearson government took office in April of 1963.

REPLACES LaMARSH

Allan MacEachen, only Nova Scotia cabinet representative, was moved from labor to health, replacing Judy LaMarsh there. Miss LaMarsh moved to state secretary.

SURPRISES

Two surprise changes in portfolios put Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve into a new role entitled rural development and forestry and changed Northern Affairs Minister Laing's title to that of Indian and northern affairs.

Formerly there was no distinct rural development portfolio and Indian affairs was administered as a section of the immigration department.

Mr. Pepin, who starts out as mines minister, later will switch to another new portfolio to be called resources and energy. This will take in the mines and technical surveys sections of the present portfolio and add responsibility for all energy resources — coal, oil, gas and atomic power.

FULL PORTFOLIO

Mr. Pearson said the growth of international crime requires the co-ordination of police forces. For closer government scrutiny of crime, some of the functions of the justice department would be turned over to the solicitor-general's office.

Some of the new duties of the solicitor-general would be responsibility for the RCMP and the National Parole Board.

The justice department would continue to be responsible for legislation, litigation and prosecution.

Other proposals the government would make include establishment of a treasury department under a minister and the enlargement of the forestry department to include rural development.

The administrative changes, provided for already in Public Service Act, would be effective Jan. 1.

Mr. Greene, a lawyer, is the first agriculture minister from an eastern constituency since the Laurier government was beaten in 1911.

Mr. Pearson hinted broadly that Transport Minister Pickersgill hopes to retire next year after piloting the massive revision of the Railway Act through the Commons.

DELAYED SWEARING

Mr. Pearson added that Mr. Winters will not be sworn in as trade minister for a week or 10 days to give him time to divest himself of his connections with a number of big companies.

The prime minister told the press conference, broadcast nationally, that he had considered the allegations of election irregularities in the Iles-de-la-Madeleine consituency of Mr. Sauve in making up his cabinet list. All the charges had been answered.

Those who wished to take any action against Mr. Sauve in this regard could do so under the act set up to deal with such allegations.

"There is a limited time to deal with it," he said.

Asked whether he had met French - Canada's cry for appointment of Quebecers to more important cabinet posts, Mr. Pearson replied he considered both the new departments of manpower and energy and resources as most important economic posts.

NO CHANGE MADE

There is no change in Mr. Favreau's duties, he said in reply to another question.

Would there be any more cabinet changes?

While no changes could be considered permanent — there could be illnesses or resignations—Mr. Pearson said this was the cabinet he expected to meet Parliament when it opened Jan. 18.

In its extent, the cabinet shuffle exceeded any made by former Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the 1957 - 63 period of Conservative administration. His tops was 11 changes in October, 1960.

It also was the third cabinet shuffle this year for the 68-year-old prime minister. He made changes involving five men last February. In the wake of the Dorion judicial inquiry report in July, he shifted five ministers and added two new ones.

With the changes made Friday, Mr. Pearson has altered his cabinet lineup seven times since taking office April 22, 1963.

26 STARTERS

Mr. Pearson went into the Nov. 8 election with 26 ministers, including nine French-speaking men. There were 10 from Ontario and eight from Quebec, including one English-speaking Quebec minister.

British Columbia had two ministers and all the other provinces one each except Saskatchewan one each was without a Liberal MP or a cabinet representative.

He came out of the election without liberal MPs from Alberta, Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island.

NEW LINEUP

The new cabinet lineup has 11 from Ontario, nine from Quebec, two from British Columbia and one each from Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Manitoba.

NEW VIGOR

Mr. Pearson said the manpower department is needed to bring about new "vigor and coordination" in manpower policy.

Besides taking over the labor department's sections dealing with job placement, employment services, technical and vocational training and civilian rehabilitation, it will include the immigration branch so immigration policy will be "effectively co-ordinated with manpower policy generally."

WANTS UNITY

He said a resources and energy department is needed to pull together responsibilities that have been under a number of departments and ministers.

"One federal responsibility is needed, in order both to make possible closer co-operation with the provinces and with industry and to achieve a more integrated national policy."

The new forestry and rural development department will focus on relieving rural poverty and the "effective application of manpower," he said.

The new department of Indian affairs and northern affairs is designed to better serve Canada's Indians and Eskimos and direct development of the North.

The press conference marked the first time that a prime minister has announced cabinet changes to a nationwide radio and television audience.

Minimal Blood Sugar Count Causes Tired, Lazy Feeling

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the symptoms of "low blood sugar," the cause and the treatment? Would early morning and late afternoon weakness be a sign of it? I am a woman of 90 and have this type of weakness which prostrates me for half an hour or so, with rapid pulse and heart palpitation.

Would a test have to be taken during one of these attacks for it to show low blood sugar? — MRS. M.M.

The symptoms you recite could fit the picture for low blood sugar, but this condition can manifest itself in many ways, so it's better to be sure than to jump to conclusions.

TESTS BEST

It is true that a blood sugar test taken during one of these weak spells would be enlightening, but since that can't always be done, a much better course is a sugar tolerance test.

This is a series of tests taken over a period of six hours, to show the degree of rise and fall, if any, in the blood sugar, and gives a very useful picture of how your system supplies and uses up its blood sugar.

The ordinary procedure is to have the patient eat a liberal diet, including substantial amounts of carbohydrate, for three days before this test is made.

NO SINGLE CAUSE

There is no single cause of low blood sugar. Our individual differences in metabolic rate, our eating habits, our degree of nervous tension all are common factors, and the treatment must be aimed at the dominant factors in any given case.

One frequent misconception is that people should eat sugar to combat this "low blood sugar" condition. That isn't so, because such doses of sugar stimulate the pancreas, which in turn speeds up its rate of insulin production. This speeds up the utilization of sugar, and you have a sort of roller coaster effect, sugar rising rapidly, then plunging to a very low level.

The better way is to get more protein in the meals, since this will release its sugar content more gradually, and help hold the average sugar level more steady.

Dear Dr. Molner: I seem to be susceptible to a vaginal fungus infection (monilia). Would pregnancy dispose to such a condition? If it should develop, can it be treated during pregnancy? — MRS. R.X.

Yes, pregnancy does predispose to monilial infection. Yes, in general it can be treated during pregnancy. Your doctor should decide in specific cases.

Nanaimo Woman Gets $50,000

Housekeeper-Companion Receives Belated Gifts

TORONTO (CP)—A 73-year-old woman now living at Nanaimo Friday was awarded about $50,000 in securities and cash from the $484,000 estate of her former employer who died here in 1960.

Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court ruled that a trust company official exercised undue influence on Mrs. Ethel Margaret English six years ago when she surrendered to the Royal Trust Co. the gifts Lester Everett Weaver had given her on her retirement as his housekeeper.

Mrs. English was "instrumental in Mr. Weaver's spending the last nine years of his life in relative happiness, peace and comfort," said Mr. Justice Landreville's written judgment.

The judge found that a natural bond of attachment had formed between Mrs. English, a widow, and Mr. Weaver, a widower. The attachment "was not planned or designed by her; it was the consequence of her natural personality."

BOUGHT STOCKS

Mr. Weaver at first bought penny stocks for Mrs. English and eventually created a $40,000 estate for her retirement, Mr. Justice Landreville said.

Mrs. English received less than 10 per cent of Mr. Weaver's estate while the assets of it went to the Weaver family. The judge also noted that both sons—Judge Everett Lane Weaver of York County court here and William Erskine Weaver, an investment dealer—already were men of means before their father died at the age of 87.

Viet Cong Way Stations

Giant B-52s Pound Laos Route On Secret Raids

SAIGON (UPI) — Giant B-52 bombers from Guam have struck at improved communist infiltration facilities in neighboring and nominally neutral Laos, it was learned early Saturday. The first in a series of secret raids was conducted more than a week ago.

The raids came against such military targets as recently constructed all-weather supply routes and way stations for Communist Vietnamese military units infiltrating through Laos to aid the Viet Cong rebels in the south.

Under an agreement between the United States and Laotian neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma, smaller American air force and navy planes have been attacking communist positions in the southern Laotian panhandle since early this year.

HUSTLED SOUTH

The decision to throw America's mightiest bombers into the attacks was prompted by a stepped-up use of the Laotian corridor by the communists.

Sources said earlier the North Vietnamese have improved the infiltration network to a point where as many as 4,500 men and 2,500 tons of supplies could be hustled south each month.

American military officials became especially concerned when they noted that the North Vietnamese had moved heavy road-building and earth-moving equipment into areas of Laos bordering Viet Nam's Kontum and Quang Nam provinces where all-weather infiltration roads were being constructed.

Rusk's Plea Leaves NATO Cold

PARIS (UPI)—NATO support for the U.S. in Viet Nam—including troops and tanks—would be welcomed, American officials said Friday. "We are open to any offers," they said.

An appeal to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council by Secretary of State Dean Rusk Tuesday covered every kind of aid, the officials said.

Any tangible support, from shipments of ambulances and hospital supplies to outright military assistance of the kind given during the Korean War, would be welcomed, they said.

The sources said, however, that the first NATO reaction to Rusk's plea was "predictable"—not too encouraging.

As one U.S. official put it.

Another Haul!

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Christmas crime wave rolled on Friday as bandits robbed a London company director of jewelry and furs worth $45,000.

In the last six weeks, jewelry and company payrolls worth more than $3,750,000 have been stolen in Britain.

Rescuers Feed Survivors

KARACHI (Reuters) — Rescuers have begun the mammoth task of caring for and feeding survivors of the cyclone that roared through East Pakistan for three hours Thursday and claimed at least 17,000 lives.

First official reports put the estimated deaths as high as 25,000 but press accounts Friday suggested the lower figure might be more accurate.

Two Suspended as Aged Beaten

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Two orderlies at the Victoria County Home for the Aged here have been suspended following allegations residents were brutally beaten.

The suspensions were announced Friday night after a meeting between Edward Hill of the county solicitor's office and Byron Rogers, chairman of the board that administers the home in this town 35 miles northeast of Peterborough.

James Growden, 64, of Lindsay, earlier presented charges of ill-treatment of residents to the board's monthly meeting.

After hearing the charges, the board asked County Judge H. E. Richardson to conduct a judicial inquiry.

Mr. Growden said he saw orderlies bump one man's head against a wall and knock down another with a punch to the neck. He also said a broom handle was broken across the neck of one resident.

The latest incident occurred Dec. 2 when an orderly, whose breath smelled of alcohol, punched an 82-year-old man in the head, he said.

Mr. Growden said he reported two of the incidents to Superintendent Laughie Keeler.

Mr. Keeler said Friday he was not told about the alleged beatings and called Mr. Growden's charges "unjust," but welcomed the inquiry.

until he turns off the lights.

He's looking for signs of metal fatigue in a critical engine part. Such fatigue may take the form of a hairline crack, invisible to the naked eye.

So Jack will turn off the lights and find it.

The machine he is using is a kind of magnetic X-ray. It takes a part that has first been coated with flourescent iron particles and runs an electric current through it. This causes a tiny arc to jump the hairline fault attracting a build-up of iron particles so that they can be seen under black light.

Still, great though the machine is, it takes an expert like Jack Hubble to operate it. It is his skill and judgment that must separate what looks like trouble from what is trouble. There's no room for error!

Food for India

THE COLOSSAL PROBLEM of supplying enough food in time when through drought a nation of hundreds of millions of persons faces the threat of widespread starvation or near-starvation is currently illustrated in the case of India.

Recently Mr. David Groos, Victoria's member of Parliament, suggested to Prime Minister Pearson that Canada should hasten to help India with additional shipments of grain and other foodstuffs. Relief, he said, must be begun immediately because it would take several weeks before the food reached the mouths of hungry Indians.

Now Canada reportedly has officially been asked by India for more wheat.

It is by no means to throw cold water on Mr. Groos' suggestion, nor to challenge his belief that most Canadians would gladly pay the cost of this vital aid to a Commonwealth partner, to note that the best Canada can do—the best both Canada and the United States can do in response to India's requests for more help—may not greatly alleviate the plight of most of the victims of the drought in a matter of weeks; probably not in months.

The lack of rain that struck such a serious agricultural blow in eight of India's states this year has resulted in harvest 12,000,000 tons below average for the country. And "average" itself is scanty enough. Even if a so-called crash program to intensify cultivation of grains is fully successful, Indian self-sufficiency in food is five years off.

And how much is 12,000,000 tons of wheat, or even the 10,000,000 that might suffice?

It is more than the maximum Canada hopes to ship to China in three years under the recent agreement with that country. It is more than half of Canada's expected record for total exports of wheat to all parts of the world this year. It is 665 times as much as Canada has shipped to India as a gift since the beginning of last April. Most important, it is so much that, at the present rate of delivery of wheat from the United States, India's mainstay in this emergency, it would take 500 days or more to land in India.

Thus is brought to mind again the warning that unless the rate of population growth can be substantially reduced in the heavily populated countries of the world where the normal food supply is barely sufficient, unless also through massive agriculture-development aid from the rich nations much more food can be produced (and surpluses stored) where needed, famine could occur on a scale beyond the world's capacity to remedy.

For 10,000,000 tons of grain is a very small part of India's total food requirements. It would feed the population of that country, at a meagre ration of a pound a person a day, for less than seven weeks.

Integration Symptom

GONE ARE THE NAVY'S Crow's Nest, the army's Journal and the air force's Roundel, once the official organs of these three Canadian services, and in their place has appeared the first issue of the Canadian forces' Sentinel.

It is a 48-page monthly publication between heavy stock covers, produced by the Queen's Printer in Ottawa, edited by Mr. J. G. DeProse, with the assistance of French editor F/L G. J. Morchain, and assistant editors F/L T. G. Coughlin and Lt. D. C. Lory. It is published in both English and French, separately.

Service men may miss for a time their own branches' magazines, but it might have been expected that the defence department, under Mr. Paul Hellyer's authority, would have made this obvious move in a continuing projection of intergration.

Whether the services would have liked to have maintained their own publications is neither here nor there; Mr. Hellyer decided that they should be scrapped, along with the other identifying military symbols, and so they were.

It is not to be inferred that the new magazine is not a thing of quality. It is attractive, readable, profusely and well illustrated.

It may even save money for the department.

The bigger navy and air force bases still produce their own local magazines, like HMCS Naden's Lookout. But these are paid for, in Naden's case in any event, by advertising or out of funds derived from other sources than the department of defence. It is likely that such publications will be continued.

Exit the 'Flat-Foot'

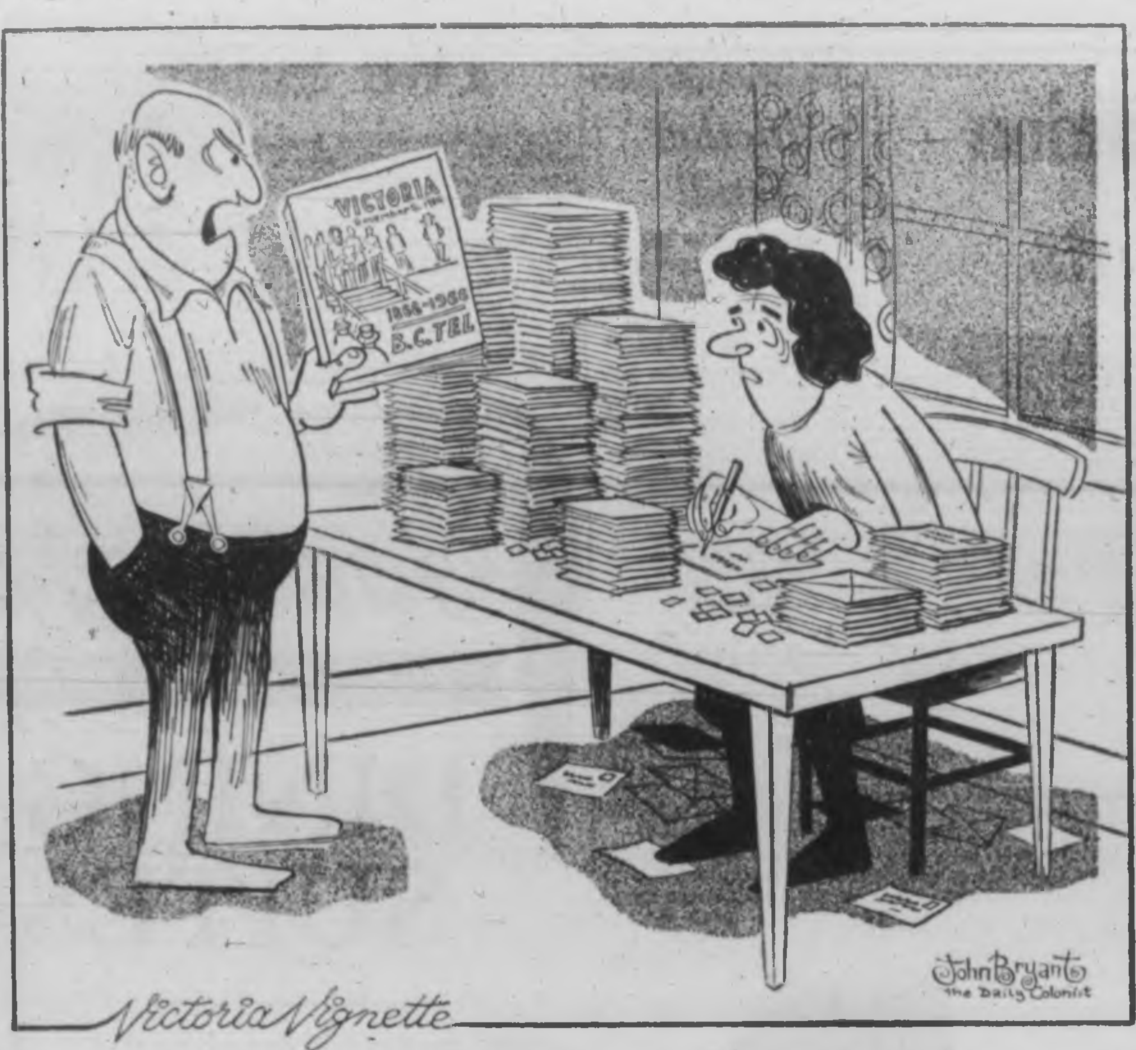
ONE NEED ONLY watch local policemen as they walk the streets keeping a careful eye on things that the ancient "flat-foot" label pinned on "bobbies"—a term also outmoded in this part of the world—is indeed a misnomer. But in the capital where the "bobby" himself as we know him originated, London, a member of its well-known metropolitan police has put a final paid to the idea that men of his ilk are but heavy-footed individuals of limited activity.

A constable who walks the Downing Street "beat" recently won his 28th trophy for fancy dancing. Millions of TV viewers for instance saw him on the small screen give a sparkling display of footwork in the Latin American vein. Anyope who has tried to perform the rhumba, the tango, the hot cha-cha or other variations of the terpsichorean art knows that these have small relation to the heavy, measured tread.

This tread of course, the "flat-foot" symbol pinned on the policeman when his role was confined mostly to simply walking the streets, was cited as the measure of his calling. And naturally enough perhaps since long hours of foot-slogging were enough to make any feet flat.

But it created another impression, that his mental resilience matched his physical condition. This was for long to do him scant justice, but in any case the modern era has put such mistaken notions in the shade. The officer of the law nowadays has not only to be spry of foot but nimble of wit too, and in our own area alone the standards that belong to his profession have risen, particularly since the war, to compel agility of limb and mind to a degree equalling that of other callings. It would be a libel on his quality to think of him in old-time terms of the flat-foot on the beat. The beats themselves have expanded to include training in the science of criminology and the deployment of policemen in the varied and testing roles that modern society demands.

As for his footwork, as the London "bobby" has demonstrated, one need only attend the local policemen's ball to note that they can step out lively with the best of them. The flat-foot theory and all it might once have suggested is definitely out.



"Whaddya know . . . They've published a list of all the people we are sending Christmas cards to."

Ottawa Offbeat

Mr. Hellyer: A Man in a Muddle

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

DEFENCE Minister Paul Hellyer's ambitious program for the remaking of the Canadian armed forces appears to have gotten away from him.

The immediate indication of this is that the total strength of the forces is dropping rapidly.

It was intended that strength should drop to 110,000 a long about next August, but it hit this figure in October of this year and the number is declining daily.

It may drop to 107,000 next month and, unless current efforts to enlist new men and encourage the re-enlistment of present servicemen are successful, there is no reason why strength will not go on dropping.

Officially, it is declared that service personnel are getting out and replacements are becoming hard to find because of a booming economy and a national shortage of skilled manpower.

But many service personnel contend there is a further reason—they are not happy with the plan to integrate the three services and they are not altogether keen on the insistence of bilingualism.

There is no doubt, as well, that there was resentment about the dismissal of servicemen in the early stages of force reduction among more than just those being dismissed.

The move created some anxiety among those still in service and many took the first opportunity presented to get out.

The purpose of the armed forces reduction was to cut manpower costs in the services and use the money thus saved to purchase new equipment.

But now it is said that the combat effectiveness of the services is being lowered because manpower is dropping too fast.

Furthermore, an intensified recruiting campaign is chewing up some of the money which was supposed to be saved.

There is confusion, too, resulting from the integration program.

In this program, officers and men of the three services are combining their efforts in central agencies or commands dealing with all three services as though they were one. It's supposed to cut manpower needs.

Well, there's the case of a medium-high officer at headquarters here who was in charge of a specialized section of the air force.

His title was changed, a new man took command of his section and he moved to another in company with officers and men of the other two services.

But after a time it was found necessary to move him back to his original section because none of the new integrated personnel, including the new commander, knew the work.

A sizeable section at Air Defence Command Headquarters at Montreal, because of the nature of its work, had a large number of secretaries.

They were checked a while back and found to be almost entirely English-speaking, not bilingual.

So one day the officers came to work and found three-quarters of their secretraies were gone. A new batch of bilingual secretaries arrived during the morning.

The first officer who approached one of the new girls and asked her to take dictation and type a letter received this reply:

Most of the original girls returned after a short interval — and the "bilingual" ones stayed on as well.

Both of these cases are probably among the extreme, but they are known in the services and don't much encourage faith in the new planning for the navy, army and air force (if they may still be spoken of separately).

However, it is doubtless true that new systems need time to work themselves out and become accepted by those they most closely affect.

The only trouble is, the ones who might be affected seem to be unwilling to wait quite a while for the working-out process before they will commit themselves to it.

A Weapon to Defeat Poverty

YOUR headline story by Fraser Kelly of the DBS report on poverty in Canada, brought to light true facts of the need for free university education in this country.

To quote directly, "In families where the male wage earner earns more than $7,000 a year, one of every two children between 19-24 years and resident at home is attending school." (Presumably university.)

"In groups where the male wage earner is earning less than $4,000 a year, less than one in eight of this group is attending school."

Free university tuition is not the complete answer but a part of the answer to providing Canada and the world with better educated young people.

In canvassing for my husband, Len Stephenson, who was the NDP candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich in the last federal election, I ran into more opposition to this proposal in the NDP policy than any other. Furthermore, the most vehement were the university-trained who protested that molly-coddling students was bad for them. Yet, many of these almost-educated professionals received their education at government expense as part of veterans' gratuities.

Can statistics enlighten those who would refuse university education to a boy or girl whose father makes less than $7,000 a year? The people who feel financial hardship is "good" and "builds character" in scholars are the same ones who oppose higher education for girls on the basis "they only marry and have a family anyway." These people wouldn't dress or live in Dickensian style, but their attitude toward educational opportunities is way out-dated.

Good coverage of the federal-provincial poverty conference is needed after all the glowing speeches about "wonderfully affluent Canada" that we heard during the election. Our own province's report on poverty in the "rich province of B.C." will be interesting, too.

CORINNE STEPHENSON,

Up Goes the Fee

I wholeheartedly agree with Mr. Thomas Moran's fight for lower automobile insurance and also found Mr. B. Lesiuk's letter to the editor about the same subject very interesting.

It shows clearly what can be done if only our provincial government would have the guts to stand up to the big boys and do something concrete about it. If Saskatchewan can do it, why can't we? But of course the public is supposed to be dumb and blind, and gullible enough to believe anything and pay up.

I have just received my pink slip for 1966 with an increase of over 55 per cent for the same coverage as this year's and to top it off, I was asked to pay another $5 service charge. The local agent advised me they would be able to drop the service charge if I would do more business with them by taking out some additional insurances.

My case, of course, won't be the only one and it isn't very hard to figure out the why. Apparently, many people like myself have resorted to take out minimum coverage only, in order to beat the exorbitant new rates. The agents in turn have lost out on their commissions and retaliate by slapping on a service charge. It really it simple and very easy for them to do, since most of the B.C. car owners seem to be either too affluent or too resigned to bother. Our government, supposedly elected by the people FOR THE GOOD OF US ALL, in this case are too spineless to care, and of course every car owner must have insurance by law. As anyone can plainly see, the law and protection in regard to automobile insurance is for the rich only.

Why doesn't the newspaper raise its price? I am sure you also could find some excuse for doing it, but then, one can live and go to work without it.

The Fairer Way

The general opinion seems to be that the sales tax was put on in order to take care of the hospitals. If this is not the case, the tax has not been sufficiently explained. If we need more for hospitals, and it would seem that we do, why not add another cent to the sales tax. There is no fairer or more equal way of taxation.

Another suggestion would be to teach people how to live on the right foods, etc., and so prevent sickness and eliminate much of the need for hospitalization.

Still another suggestion would be to cut down the speed limit for cars, and that would probably keep a great many cases out of the hospitals and be a benefit to everyone. Speed is a killer any way you look at it.

One for Chinook

Your "One for All" of Dec. 12 deserves thanks and is thought-provoking.

I myself am holding out for Chinook as a common language for all Canada: It is practical, easy to learn, picturesque! I recall that some cheechakos banned its official and telegraphic use several years ago.

I think too, with you, some of us English-speaking Canadians should read some good book about derivations.

Tax History

Health Minister Martin is quoted in the Dec. 10 issue of your paper as criticizing comments of some municipal leaders that 2 per cent of the social services tax is "earmarked" for hospital insurance.

When the social services tax was first introduced it was officially named the Social Services an Municipal Aid Tax and was commonly known as the 3 per cent sales tax.

About 1948 the government of the day introduced B.C. hospital insurance to cover the cost of hospital care. Hospital care, not the capital cost of building hospitals. There was a monthly premium prepaid six months in advance by employers who adopted the payroll deduction plan. For individuals not on payroll deduction offices were opened and they were requested to register. Unfortunately a lot of people failed to register and provided they didn't require hospital care did not contribute to BCHIS.

When these people required hospital care, or otherwise came to the attention of BCHIS, they were required to pay premiums from the day the plan started in addition to any hospital costs.

One of the pledges of the newly formed Social Credit party was to clean up the BCHIS mess. Shortly after their election in 1952 they abolished hospital insurance premiums, refunded the prepaid premiums, and increased the SS and MA tax by 2 per cent to 5 per cent. Whether or not they keep this money separate only the present government knows. There is ample reason for municipal leaders and others to believe that when the sales clerk adds on the 5 per cent "for Bennett" 2 per cent is in lieu of the hospital insurance we have not had to pay for many years. There may be some minor errors as to dates, etc., in the above but this is the sequence of events that ties 2 per cent of the sales tax to hospital insurance.

One Voice, One People

Your editorial under the caption "Voice of Minority" should be read and acted upon by our leaders of government.

What made the United States great was its settling its language policy. It is not generally known that but for one vote German would have been spoken in that great country, and they do not tolerate this bilingual confusion. High time we started singing Land Fair and Free, and raising that monument to Mozart as suggested by the late Judge Weir.

How about giving the facts to the people?

Nobel Prize Winner Strictly Party Man

By MIRON GRINDEA and ROLAND HUNTFORD
from Stockholm

MIKHAIL SHOLOKHOV is 61, and looks like Khrushchev's twin brother. At the age of 21 he started to write And Quiet Flows the Don, and completed this epic novel 14 years later. On Dec. 10 in Sweden's capital he received the Nobel Prize for Literature, the most coveted award—and often the most controversial—in the writers' world, and it is worth £20,000.

Sholokhov is a life-long member of the Communist Party, and a much-admired virtuoso in outwitting the purging tribunals during the Stalin era, when many a writer or artist was not sure which "line" to adopt. Russia's real literary giants, Tolstoy and Gorky, failed to get the Nobel Prize. Half-a-century later in 1958, when the award went to the "decadent" Boris Pasternak, whose writings had been banned in the Soviet Union for many years, Soviet official indignation knew no limits—so much so that the elated recipient was ruthlessly coerced into the most dramatic humiliation ever inflicted on a contemporary artist—Pasternak had to "decline" the prize. Nevertheless, the prestige of his novel, Dr. Zhivago, which had been taken out of Russia secretly, and published in many languages, reached unexpected heights.

In a carefully-worded yet subtle address, abounding in double-entendres, given before Stockholm's official ceremony, Dr. Anders Osterling, chairman of the Nobel Committee of the Swedish Academy, pointed out a great many things which neither Mr. Sholokhov nor any literary critic in Russia could comfortably express in public. He spoke of Sholokhov's "sympathy for the highly individual temperament of the Cossacks," of the "peasants' revolt" against the new central authorities (after the revolution) and of the defiant spirit of independence that drove the peasants to resist every attempt at subjection.

Dr. Osterling further said that "although a convinced Communist, Sholokhov kept ideological comment out of his book completely." Idealogical comment was over-abundant when, before the ceremony, I had the opportunity of talking to the novelist. He had previously spoken of the significance of the fact that the Nobel Prize for Literature was now being given for the first time to a Soviet author. In speaking to me he elaborated on this by stressing that, in 1933 the award went to Ivan Bunin, a Russian refugee writer who was then living in France, but whom Sholokhov simply described as a "stateless author." More startling still, Sholokhov said that the 1958 Nobel award went to "an emigrant writer" — the year of the Pasternak scandal.

"Does Mr. Sholokhov not consider Dr. Zhivago a work of art in the true tradition of the Russian novel?" I asked.

I received this reply: "The more I think of it the more I find Dr. Zhivago a very bad novel indeed." This, it should be remembered, was the official line taken by the Soviet authorities immediately after Pasternak was forced to recant. Since then, how ver, his poems have been reprinted in several editions, and the novel — banned at first in Russia — is now talked about with a certain amount of freedom, and even with admiration.

I asked further: "Doesn't Mr. Sholokhov believe that Pasternak was a great artist?" "Yes, he was an excellent translator and not a bad poet." Again an official and very much out-dated interpretation.

Apart from this, Mr. Sholokhov was amusing, and again remindnig me of Khrushchev, unabashed by all sorts of indiscreet questions. What will he do with the fat cheque which he will cash at a Swedish bank next Monday? He will travel around the world. In South America at first, then perhaps in North America, but he hopes to avoid the press. To which an American correspondent fired this quip: "Was this year's Nobel award given to Sholokhov the Russian novelist, or the Soviet writer, or the member of the Communist party? The reply was, "To all three at once."

Attempts have been made in Stockholm to interest Mr. Sholokhov in the fate of Russian authors Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuri Daniel, who have been published in the West under the pseudonyms of Abram Tertz and Nikolai Arzhak. They are believed to be in the Lubianka Prison in Moscow awaiting trial for alleged anti-Soviet activities. When Sholokhov was asked at a press conference whether he could intercede on their behalf, his reply was: "As a member of the Supreme Soviet, I have no right to interfere with matters sub judice, and anyway writers are subject to laws, in the same way as everybody else."

Shriller Tone

Soviet Raps Resistance In Viet Nam

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
from Washington

THE Soviet Union's new propaganda offensive against the United States is being used in varying tones of threat and hope by all those forces around the world which are declaring that the U.S. must in one way or another abandon South Viet Nam to Communist invasion.

It has, in consequence, stirred some anxiety among those responsible for the strictly political and diplomatic aspects of U.S. policy. Undeniably, it has to some extent freshly armed those here and abroad who clamor for "negotiations" with the North Vietnamese aggressors and an end to American bombing even though North Viet Nam continues to scorn any honorable negotiation and continues to make quite plain that a suspension of bombing would not change its mind.

Thus, the net of it is that Moscow's renewed screeching has to some not precisely measurable degree injured the purposes of the United States and equivalently strengthened the hand of the North Vietnamese. To that degree also the Russians have knuckled under to prolonged pressure from their Chinese rivals for the leadership of world Communism and so agreed to "do something" in behalf of North Viet Nam's effort to bring the famous blessings of garrison Communism to South Viet Nam.

If the position for the United States in diplomatic terms is damaged, however, there is the soundest of cause for the backers of the war of resistance in Viet Nam not to be thrown into flapping distress. For—and this is the core of it all—the highest military authorities of the United States are not in the least alarmed by Moscow's new verbal push.

They see this whole business—including the small announced rise in the Russian military budget which was trumpeted coincident with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's interview with The New York Times—as meaning that the Soviet Union is now willing to spend rhetoric against the U.S. but is by no means looking for trouble in the sphere of action as distinguished from the arena of words.

There is, parenthetically, clearly some Communist plan to go after the United States everywhere in the East where a forum can be found. For on the heels of Kosygin's talk, Chinese Communist President Ho Chi-minh has used an interview with a British journalist to join in the attack upon American policies.

As to the announced 5 per cent boost in the Soviet military budget, the people who ought to know the most are the least worried—that is, the Pentagon. In the first place, it may be only a bookkeeping increase intended to dramatize Kosygin's tougher talk. But even if it is a genuine increase it is, ironically, calculated more to diversify than to harden the total Soviet military establishment.

It looks, in a word, that the Russians have decided to go through a military evolution which the United States started under the Eisenhower administration and has pushed through the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. Here, that evolution meant the adoption of a greater variety of weapons at the expense of maintaining intact a more nearly monolithic weapons system thought to have become a bit out of date.

At the topmost levels among the military here, the really significant factor to be deducted from Kosygin's interview is not some actual hardening of the Soviet intentions but rather simply the shrillness of his tone. He is protesting so much as to suggest that apart from verbally submitting, in part, to China's tougher line he is speaking in inner fear that the allied position in South Viet Nam, for the first time, really threatens the Communist invaders.

The historical fact is that every time a so-called "war of liberation" has begun to go against Communist arms, Moscow's talk has got harsher—while its actions have become more cautious.

Tom Kent Now Deputy

'War on Poverty' Head Gets Citizenship Post

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson named Friday his former policy secretary and the chief of the war on poverty, Tom Kent, to be deputy minister of citizenship and immigration.

The appointment was among five affecting this most senior level of the civil service. Mr. Kent will become deputy minister of the proposed new manpower department.

Claude Isbister, deputy minister of citizenship and immigration, becomes deputy mines minister and eventually deputy minister of resources and energy when that new department is established.

NEW POST

E. A. Cote, deputy minister of northern affairs and national resources, becomes deputy minister for the planned new department of Indian affairs and northern affairs.

Dr. Louis Z. Rousseau, deputy forestry minister, becomes deputy minister of the proposed new department of rural development and forestry.

Dr. W. E. Van Steenburgh, deputy mines minister, is to undertake special work in the scientific secretariat of the Privy Council office. He will get an extension of his appointment beyond age 66.

All the changes among the deputy ministers are effective Jan. 1, 1966.

Mr. Isbister, 51, was appointed deputy immigration minister in 1963 and has been a key figure in a broad reorganization of structure and policy now going on in that department. He went to immigration after 18 years in important government trade and financial posts.

FORMER EDITOR

Mr. Kent, 42, an economist and former newspaper editor, has been heading the government's war on poverty since earlier this year. Before that, he was Mr. Pearson's chief policy man with wide powers in co-ordinating the government's program.

Dr. Rousseau, 64, came to the federal government three years ago as assistant deputy minister of forestry. He had been dean of Laval University's school of land surveying and forestry for eight years and a faculty member for more than 20 years.

Dr. Van Steenburgh, 65, had been deputy mines minister since 1963. During 34 years in federal government service, he has been most active in promoting increased scientific research by various government departments.

Cabinet's Age Drops

OTTAWA (CP) — Average age of the federal cabinet dropped by 1½ years under changes announced Friday by Prime Minister Pearson.

Average age of the 26 cabinet ministers now is 50.7 years. When Parliament was dissolved last Sept. 8 for the Nov. 8 federal election, the average age of the then 26-member cabinet was 52.2.

Mr. Pearson at 68 is the oldest member. Youngest is John Turner, newly-named minister without portfolio. He is 36.

Conference Under Study

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada, Jamaica and Trinidad are proposing a heads-of-government conference next year on Canadian-West Indies relations, Prime Minister Pearson said.

He said at a press conference the question of holding such a conference was discussed by him with the two West Indian Commonwealth countries during his recent holiday - official visit in the Caribbean.

Lamontagne Lauded

Pearson Hurt By Resignation

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Pearson Friday accepted with "great regret" the resignation from the cabinet of Secretary of State Maurice Lamontagne.

Lamontagne resigned from the portfolio Thursday night because of criticism of his purchase of furniture from a Montreal firm that later went bankrupt for allowing no down payments.

LAMARSH GETS JOB

Health Minister Lamarsh was moved to the portfolio Friday in sweeping cabinet changes announced by Pearson.

"In the circumstances I must accept your resignation," Pearson wrote Lamontagne. "I understand the reasons for your decision, but I am distressed by them."

Pearson thanked Lamontagne for his work as a cabinet minister and his role in furthering Canadian unity.

PEARSON PRAISES

Pearson acknowledged Lamontagne's work as Secretary of State "in the face of very trying and unfair criticism."

He called him "a man of honor and integrity" and said it had been an honor to have his friendship.

Hays' Future Remains In Doubt

Mr. Hays, appointed agriculture minister when the Liberals took office in 1963, was defeated in Calgary South in the Nov. 8 election.

Mr. Pearson told a press conference Friday he hopes to be able to use Mr. Hays and that they will meet Monday in Ottawa.

Mr. Hays is anxious to maintain his contact with federal politics, he said.

50 YEARS

There had been speculation Mr. Hays would be appointed to the Senate, and remain agriculture minister. But this was dashed with the appointment of J. J. Greene of Renfrew to the post—the first easterner to hold it in more than 50 years.

Reporters questioned whether there was "inadequate" cabinet representation for the Prairies.

Mr. Pearson, who now has only one MP in the three provinces, replied that he "hasn't adequate representation from the three Prairie Provinces."

Mr. Hays still might go to the Senate because there are three Alberta vacancies.

Just a 'Down Payment'

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government announced salary increases of four to six per cent Friday for some 60,000 federal employees in clerical, administrative and professional-support positions.

Revenue Minister Benson said the increases are retroactive to Oct. 1, 1965, and estimated the average increase at $193 a year.

Spokesman for civil service staff associations accepted the increases as "down payments" but said they expect further pay improvements next year.

The increases amount to four per cent for classes with a maximum of $6,060 or less, five per cent for classes with a maximum between $6,060 and $7,900 and six per cent for those with a maximum above $7,900.

The increases apply to about 58,000 civil servants in the group B pay category, and to some 2,180 in similar job classes in agencies exempt from the civil service act.

These include the National Research Council, Defence Research Board, Fisheries Research Board, National Capital Commission, Centennial Commission, Economic Council of Canada and the Atlantic Development Board.

Mr. Benson said the interim increases will cost the government $11,600,000 annually, not including the cost of additional payments to the Public Service Superannuation Fund.

Because of the work load at the central pay office caused by introduction of the Canada Pension Plan Jan. 1, the increases will not be reflected in salary cheques until after the new year.

J. Cal Best, president of the 33,000-member Civil Service Association of Canada, said his organization feels the interim increases announced today "fail to correct the fundamental salary problem in group B."

Mr. Best said the latest increases are "so inadequate that employees are entitled to a salary increase retroactive to Oct. 1, 1964" and these should be "not less than 6.5 per cent."

Jack Maguire, research director for the 80,000-member Civil Service Federation of Canada, said the increases are "not too bad as a down payment, but any final settlement will have to be as much again, effective to Oct. 1, 1965."

Two More Bodies Found in Rubble

MONTREAL (CP)—The death toll in the collapse of a railway tunnel under construction rose to seven Friday with the recovery of two more bodies from the concrete in which they were buried.

They were believed to be the last victims of the tunnel collapse Thursday when about 1,600 tons of wet concrete poured down on five men working in the tunnel. Some of an estimated dozen men working on top of the tunnel were carried down into the muck, which hardened as rescue operations continued throughout the night.

Six men were injured, two severely.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Viva Sedan

In just two short years, the Vauxhall Viva has gained immense popularity with thousands of Canadians. Maybe 1966 is the year you'll join them. Here's why:

Viva is a performer. A fifty horsepower engine, and a fully-synchronized four-speed transmission coupled with a high power-to-weight ratio give Viva carefully balanced performance. And with its exclusive Roll-Control suspension system, Viva stays flat and well-behaved on even the twistiest byways. Obviously, Viva's a car that will take the dullness out of everyday driving.

Viva is practical, too. Its purchase price is very, very low. And Viva delivers a surprising number of miles to the gallon. Interior roominess is exceptional. In fact, there's more head and leg-room in the front of a Viva than in a lot of luxury sedans. There's a lot of trunk space, too. 10.76 cubic feet, in fact. And Viva's heater is especially designed to keep you warm in the coldest Canadian winter.

Viva is made by General Motors. That means it's made well. Very well. The 1966 Viva won two Gold Medals at the London Motor Show to help prove that point. But don't take anybody's word for it. Visit your Vauxhall dealer today and test-drive the little Viva. You may want to give it a gold medal for personality.

Ask about the handsome 1966 Vauxhall Victor 101, too!

Woolworth Move Temporary

Store to Expand

F. W. Woolworth Co. Ltd. plans to move their Douglas Street operation temporarily to the former Woodward's store early next month.

A major expansion program, which will double sales floor area has been planned for the store's present location at 1204 Douglas.

Store manager Roger Moore said Friday the store will operate for approximately eight months from the temporary quarters.

The cost of the program was not disclosed.

He said the store's structure will remain basically the same, but have a main and a lower sales floor.

"The utility space, now in the basement, will be changed to the second floor," he said. "What is now the basement will become the lower selling area."

LUNCH COUNTER

He said the plans call for new departments, a larger lunch counter, and escalators between floors.

"People will hardly recognize the store when it is finished," he said.

"There will also be a general upgrading of the merchandise."

He pointed out, that although there will be entirely new sections, such as ladies' apparel and dry goods departments, the store will still carry on many of its old lines of merchandise.

Mr. Moore said a staff increase for the store was expected.

The first Woolworth's store opened in Victoria in 1912 at 1110 Government, and moved to its present location at 1204 Douglas in 1922.

The present super-market effect to the store took place in 1958 when the store was broadened, increasing the lineal counter space from 1,100 to 2,143 feet.

telligentsia which had hoped that a French Canadian would receive a major economic post.

"The two top economic portfolios have gone to the drifters, the laissez faire economists. If these two men follow their records we'll be in for a policy of drift.

"I challenge Mr. Sharp to state as soon as possible whether or not he will follow the policies of Mr. Gordon," he said.

BACKED AWAY

"Mr. Pearson was unable to find a Quebec lieutenant he trusts sufficiently to gave an economic post," he added.

He said the prime minister had backed away "from the golden opportunity he had" to pick the best men for the best jobs irrespective of the regions they represented.

QUEBEC PROBLEM

He predicted the new cabinet appointments would cause the Liberal party great problems in Quebec, and open up that province "to the economic policies of the Conservatives."

He also predicted that Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve would soon resign from the cabinet. (The post has been changed to rural development and forestry, but Mr. Sauve's power has increased very little.)

NO DECISION

"Mr. Sauve has been written off by Mr. Pearson. I would predict he won't be in the cabinet long.

"By not promoting him or putting him out entirely Mr. Pearson leaves him neither guilty nor not guilty," Mr. Hamilton said.

Creditiste leader Real Caouette was kinder to the prime minister, stating the new cabinet "has satisfied the needs of Quebec."

BETTER JOB

He said the new post of resources and energy should become vevry important. "The cabinet is a better job than it was," Mr. Caouette said.

He said, however that he would have preferred the agricultural portfolio had been given to someone from Quebec "with real knowledge of the problems of eastern agriculture."

He said his party would fight to unseat Mr. Sauve if it could establish that all allegations against him are true.

LONG DUE

He described Mr. Sauve's defence of himself against the charges of election irregularities as "fit for a two-year-old boy."

Socred leader Robert Thompson welcomed the creation of the new portfolios as "constructive and logical." But he added that Mr. Pearson should have made them months ago instead of calling the election.

SOME DOUBT

He expressed some doubt about the choice of J. J. Greene as agriculture minister.

"Whether an Ottawa Valley lawyer will make a good minister of agriculture remains to be seen. However Mr. Greene is young and personable, and it will be a tremendous challenge to him.

Mr. Greene will need all his powers of oratory to sell himself to the western farmers," Mr. Thompson said.

Sewer Tax Bylaw Rectified

The proclamation legalizes all errors, and no compensations can be sought.

Errors in enforcing the sewer bylaw came to light, when it was discovered there had been no frontage tax assessment roll court of revision to hear appeals.

Parksville has received grants from B.C. Hydro, $1,054.38 for schools and $2,073.29 for local improvement.

Break-In Brings 2½ Years

William Astrope, released from jail Aug. 5 after serving a two-year sentence, was sent to jail Friday by Magistrate William Ostler for 2½ years.

Magistrate Ostler found Astrope guilty in central magistrate's court of breaking into Shirley McAree Florists, 2043 Cadboro Bay, Oct. 31.

He said the Crown had presented a "very strong circumstantial case."

Stephen Cassidy, who lived at 627 Bay with Astrope, received two years in jail for his part in the offence at an earlier hearing.

HAD RECORD

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Astrope had a record for breaking and entering, theft of an auto, obstructing a peace officer, possession of morphine and carrying a concealed weapon.

Magistrate Ostler said he did not believe Astrope's story that Cassidy had punched him in the alley by the florist store and that he (Astrope) had fled.

"It is absurd to suggest this because at that time Cassidy was inside the window," Magistrate Ostler said.

Defence counsel Kenneth Cox submitted that it was only a police theory that the window was the point of entry and that Cassidy needed assistance to get into the window.

Mr. Cox said pictures presented by the Crown of the area at the rear of the store showed that there were scuff marks on the wall beneath the window.

Magistrate Ostler said that Const. Robert Smirl said in evidence the pictures were taken some time after the offence.

'BE IMPOSSIBLE'

"I am of the opinion that it would be impossible to get through the window unassisted without taking considerable time and without leaving scuff marks," Magistrate Ostler said.

"A careful analysis of Astrope's story shows it is palpably untrue. It is obvious he must have run away when he heard Auxiliary Const. (Ronald) Morgan coming."

SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Mervin Rowland was given a suspended sentence after pleading guilty to begging on Government Street Thursday night.

Sgt. John Rickerby said he saw Rowland, 570 Yates, stop two men on Government.

"He carried on a discussion and received something," Sgt. Rickerby said.

Rowland was seen to stop three more men and Sgt. Rickerby said he had $3.94 in small change on him when checked.

Magistrate Ostler said that he would give Rowland another chance after hearing he had been arrested for the same charge in 1957. Rowland was placed on a $250 bond for one year.

WAS SCARED

Ronald Fraser, 4443 Wilkinson, left the scene of an accident because he was scared, court was told.

Fraser pleaded guilty to failing to remain at the scene of an accident and was fined $300. He was also fined $50 for driving without due care and attention and barred from driving for one year.

Const. Frederick Brodersen said that Fraser pulled out to pass a car on Tillicum at 11:45 p.m. Thursday.

"He had to cut in because of on-coming traffic," Const. Brodersen said. "He skidded into the car in front of him."

The driver lost control and went 120 feet along the edge of a ditch, Const. Brodersen said. The driver received a whiplash to her neck and was admitted to hospital.

A car that smashed into the rear of a parked vehicle on Gorge at 12:55 a.m. Wednesday, started off a chain reaction, court was told.

The parked car was shunted forward and struck a second car which in turn struck a third.

The driver of the car, Thomas Scarr, 543 Joffre, fled the scene on foot, Prosecutor Birkett said.

Scarr pleaded guilty and was fined $200 for failing to remain at the scent of an accident and $45 for careless driving. His licence was suspended.

Russell Christenson, HMCS Mackenzie, was fined $40 after pleading guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor.

Christenson had 18 full bottles of beer in his possession when checked by Oak Bay police Nov. 27.

Black Receptive

Farmers Want Museum

A three-man delegation from the B.C. Farm Machinery Museum Association on the Lower Mainland Friday asked the provincial government for a $25,000 grant towards construction of a farm museum adjacent to Fort Langley.

Alex Hope, of Langley, president of the association, said a building is needed to house a collection of more than 100 pieces of old-fashioned farm equipment because some of the implements are in the open and rapidly deteriorating.

'SUPPORTED US'

He said Provincial Secretary Wesley Black as "very receptive" to their application and that Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan, former agriculture minister in the early 1950's, "has supported us all along."

He said the association waited until it had raised $10,500 and obtained assurance of the federal government for a $15,000 grant before approaching the provincial government for a $25,000 matching grant.

DELEGATION

Accompanying Mr. Hope were Harry Bose of Cloverdale, former president, and Thomas Leach of North Surrey, secretary-treasurer.

The collection of farm equipment now scattered around the farms of these three men includes a hand-forged plow brought from Bruce County, Ont., years ago by R. A. Coleman who used it to win 27 out of 28 plowing matches in the Fraser Valley, said Mr. Leach.

After 27 Years

Husband, Wife Reunited

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A man who for 18 years was missing and presumed dead has been reunited with his wife and two children, after 27 years of separation.

Abram Martens, who arrived in Niagara Falls from Russia in November, was separated from his family in 1938 when his daughter Margaret was seven and son Henry was six. They and their mother remained on the family farm in the Soviet Union until 1943 when, caught between the German retreat and the Russian advance, they travelled to Germany. They came to Canada in 1947, sponsored by relatives in Virgil, Ont.

Mrs. Martens says she never despaired of seeing her husband and in 1956 he was located. Since then, with the assistance of the Red Cross and the Canadian government authorities, the family has been seeking permission for Mr. Martens to enter Canada.

Also present to greet their new-found grandfather were Linda, Robert, David and Karen Ehlert, the children of his daughter.

Refinery Profits Down

Boom Skirts Sugar

By HARRY YOUNG

Business Editor

The sharp fall in the price of sugar was the main cause for a considerable drop in profits of B.C. Sugar Refinery Ltd. in the year ended Sept. 30.

Net profit for the year was $2,626,414 ($2.75) against $4,374,874 ($4.72). Provision for income tax was $1,249,000 against $2,267,000 a year ago.

Volume of sales—because of lower selling price for sugar—was $37,021,128 against $53,527,326 in 1964.

LOWEST IN YEARS

Chairman F. Rogers in his annual report said that this fall sugar prices had fallen to their lowest level in 25 years.

There was more sugar than the world could use, and producers who had to sell at current world prices could not help losing money.

Mr. Rogers, however, added that 90 per cent of the world's sugar was marketed at artificially controlled prices. Canada was among the 10 per cent which bought at the violently fluctuating world prices.

1966 HOPEFUL

The present international sugar agreement is highly unsatisfactory, according to Mr. Rogers, who adds that a recent conference held at Geneva while not producing a new agreement had opened the way for further talks to be held in 1966.

Mr. Rogers added regretfully that the boom conditions now being enjoyed in B.C. had bypassed the sugar industry. The boom created higher levels of wages and other costs which B.C. Sugar Refinery had to meet out of its lower dollar sales.

BETTER THAN MOST

An official of the B.C. government petroleum division described a new Pacific Petroleums well in the Weasel field of northern B.C. as better than average.

In a report from Calgary, Pacific claims that its well gave a test flow of 1,100 barrels of oil a day and that it was one of the most productive wells it had drilled in B.C.

The Weasel field is west of Wildmint and south of the Milligan Creek where over 20 wells are in production.

When connected to a pipeline the new well will have an allowable flow of 429 barrels a day.

Ownership of the 2,090 acre lease on which the well was drilled is shared by Pacific, Scurry Rainbow and Canadian Delhi.

NEW NICKEL RECORD

International Nickel Company of Canada forecast that total world consumption of nickel—outside the communist countries—will set a new high record in 1965.

Henry S. Wingate, chairman of the world's largest nickel producer said the total would come to 730,000,000 pounds, up 60,000,000 pounds or nine per cent from 1964.

The biggest increase in the use of nickel during 1965 has been by the United States as Mr. Wingate's figures show in pounds consumed, with 1964 figures in brackets:

United States 350,000,000, (308,000,000); Common Market Countries 135,000,000, (127,000,000); United Kingdom 90,000,000, (87,000,000); Japan 67,000,000, (71,000,000); Sweden 32,000,000, (30,000,000); Canada 18,000,000, (16,000,000); all others 38,000,000, (31,000,000). Total: 730,000,000, (670,000,000).

CLAIRTONE GETS FUNDS

The new money will be used to add $2,000,000 to Clairtone's working capital and another $1,000,000 will be used to refinance the company's investment in Canadian Motor Industries, which holds the Canadian franchise on two makes of Japanese cars.

Freighter Hits Burrard Dock

The M.S. Benedicte had loaded 23,900 tons of coal at the Pacific Coast bulk terminal at Port Moody and was on her way downstream when she hit the Imperial Oil dock at Ioco.

To Maintain Boom

Boost Production At Home—Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — Growth trends remain strong in the Canadian economy for 1966 but domestic productivity and exports must be increased to avoid foreign exchange difficulties, Trade Minister Sharp said Friday.

In a year-end review of the 1965 economy and outlook for the new year, he said there now is little if any slack in the country's productive capacity.

Consumer spending continues strong, especially for durable goods, and business investment in new plant and equipment will increase 10 to 15 per cent in 1966 over the high levels of the past year.

Mr. Sharp said the increase of nine per cent in the gross national product expected to be recorded for the whole of 1965 represents a gain in real output of about six per cent. The real output increase in 1964 was 6½ per cent.

'Haida' to Sail Straits

New Sloop Locally Made

Construction on the first of five Victoria-designed Haida-class sloops began at Philbrook's shipyards in Sidney Friday.

Five of the 26-foot racing-cruising sloops have already been ordered and the first is expected to be completed within 90 days.

STEPPED UP

Designer Ray Richards says production time will be stepped up with each succeeding sloop.

Mr. Richards designed the sloop after consultation with Logan Mayhew and Donald McCowan of Mayhew and Strutt. They will handle sales.

The craft will have a rated sail area of 330 square feet and displace two tons. It will sell in the $6,000 bracket.

SMOOTH LINES

Mr. Richards feels the design will make the Haida a strong competitor on long courses such as the annual Juan de Fuca Race for Class C yachts.

First five orders are for local delivery, but the market could go far afield.

The mast and boom will be aluminum, with the main sheet arrangement designed to make maximum use of the flexible boom, and stainless standing rigging is arranged to make use of a flexible mast.

One of the new craft will be on exhibit at the Vancouver boat show in February.

Pension Merge Studied

A compromise system of blending existing municipal employees' pension plans with the Canada Pension Plan is being studied by Victoria municipal manager and finance committee.

The system was suggested to council by the Union of B.C. Municipalities when it was decided the B.C. act governing municipal employees pensions would probably not allow complete integration with the federal plan.

The plan would increase an employee's total contribution slightly but neither pension would be downgraded.

Miners' Bodies Brought Up

VIRGINIA, South Africa (Reuters)—Rescue teams Thursday recovered the bodies of nine Negro miners crushed to death in a rock fall at the Virginia gold mine in the Orange Free State. Fourteen were killed in the disaster.

New Sputnik Going Well

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia has launched the 100th in its Cosmos series of Sputniks. Tass said the scientific satellite is in a circular orbit 400 miles away from earth, orbiting once in 97.7 minutes.

The agency said it is close to the planned orbit and the equipment aboard is functioning normally.

Yuletide Crime Spree

Two Masked Santas In Montreal Holdup

MONTREAL (CP) — Five armed bandits, three of them wearing knitted woollen hoods and two wearing Santa Claus masks, escaped with $5,000 in a holdup at a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in suburban Ville D'Anjou Friday.

Police said three of the men, armed with two rifles and a revolver, ordered seven employees and one customer to lie on the floor while the other two cleared the tills.

In one of four downtown burglaries discovered Friday morning, a gang of safecrackers invaded the provincial motor vehicles office and stole an undetermined number of licence registration blanks and cash.

In another a gang cracked a safe in offices of Trust General du Canada and took $12,000.

In two burglaries in another building thieves took furs, liquor, a coin collection, a camera, a tape recorder and cash to a total value of $20,596.

Pacific Makes Big Gain

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials remained the soft spot with generally lower prices in modest trading.

In the senior list, Algoma slipped 1⅝, Moore Corp., and CPR ⅞ each, Aluminium ⅝ and Walker-Gooderham ⅛. Countering the decline, Seven Arts jumped 1⅜ to 19⅝.

Banks were mostly unchanged.

Base metals were slightly stronger with Inco climbing 1⅛ to 98⅛. Hudson Bay added ¼ to 76⅛. Falconbridge eased ⅛ to 107 and Cominco ¼.

Western oils were also marginally improved with Pacific Pete jumping ⅞ to 12⅝. Asamera 10 cents to 2.50 and Canadian Export Gas 3 cents to 2.60.

Among speculative mining issues, Captain gained 6 to 30½ cents while D'Eldona eased 7 cents to 1.03 and O'Brien was unchanged at 1.86.

Irregular Mines

VANCOUVER—Mining stocks squirmed around without much pattern. Dynasty improved near the close to 12.75 on the same level as Pyramid.

Croyden was 1.30, Ace .86 and Rodstrom 1.02, all better or worse by a cent or two.

Prosper was active and made progress at .75.

Pacific and Westcoast were stronger among industrials as was MacMillan at .26 Laurentide rallied to 10½ after having been lower.

Rails Strengthen

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite strength in rails and steels, the stock market backed away from an early advance and ended mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average took a loss of 1.28 at 957.85 after backing away from an advance of 2.28 in the first hour when the indicator read 961.41—a shade below the historic closing high of 961.85.

It was the second straight day that the average had dallied with a possible new closing record but failed to hold up by the final bell.

Steels continued their rally, most of them advancing moderately. They were spurred this time by reports of rising orders from the automakers and the railways.

Investors Want
BOTH FEET ON THE GROUND!

Every $2,000 currently invested by Victoria Mortgage is secured by an average of $10,000 Real Estate. That kind of security in fact puts them on the ground firmly enough, but Victoria Mortgage has gone even further by establishing substantial share capital to give additional security to the debenture-holder. Yet our debentures still pay 7% for a one-year term, 7½% for 5 years. Full, easy-to-read details are available in our free booklet. Phone for one today, 384-7128, or call at 817 Fort.

Special Services Mark Christmas

Three special services for Christmas will take place in Christmas Sunday this Sunday, then a Christmas Eve service this Friday and a Christmas Day service, Saturday.

Thus at St. David by-the-Sea in Cordova Bay a special carol service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, Christmas Eve choral eucharist will be celebrated at 11 p.m. and a Christmas Day family service will take place at 10:30 a.m., all services to be conducted by the vicar, Rev. H. Gordon Walker.

At Fairfield United Church, three Christmas services will be held Sunday with, at 9:30 a.m., a family service in which the children of the Sunday School will present a pageant: The Gift We Bring.

At the 11 a.m. service Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley will speak on The Wonder of Christmas. The 7:30 p.m. service will be completely musical with the junior and senior choirs.

At 7 p.m. Friday at Fairfield a candlelight service sponsored by the young people with a youth and a junior choir will be the Christmas Eve service.

At 11 a.m. Saturday a Christmas Day family service will be conducted by Dr. Kerley.

All churches in Greater Victoria which are featuring Christmas Eve and Christmas Day services are invited to inform The Religion Editor of The Daily Colonist so that a summary of such services can appear in next Friday's paper. This would be in addition to the regular news of next Saturday's religion pages.

A composition by Eric V. Edwards, church organist at St. Matthias Anglican, called Star of Wonder will be featured at that church's 4 p.m. carol service this Sunday.

Part 1 of the Edward's cantata will be presented by the junior and senior choirs with soloists Kathleen Gresham, James Mainguy, Bill Ritchie and Jack Tippett.

Christmas festival services this Sunday at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will feature at 11 a.m. the sermon by Very Rev. J. Lewis W. McLean entitled Christmas Symbols and at 7:30 p.m. Joys at Christmas.

Morning worship will have the children presenting white gifts. Another feature will be the sacrament of infant baptism. Preceding the evening service, C. C. Warren will conduct a 15 minute congregational carol sing, with William McColl at the organ.

White gift offerings will be presented at the 11 a.m. service in First Baptist where the worship theme will be The Festival of Light.

Bishop Also 'Bishop'

Archbishop Is 'Your Grace' And Bishop Is 'My Lord'

"Your grace" is the form of address used in speaking to an archbishop, not a bishop as incorrectly stated recently on this page.

The error was made by the reporter writing up an interview with Canon C. Hilary Butler on clerical titles and terms.

How does one address a bishop, then?

"A bishop can be addressed as 'My Lord,' but increasingly this is being dropped in favor of 'Bishop,' " said Mr. Butler.

But still appropriate for an archbishop is "your grace."

Testaments Sent As Memorial Gift

The Church of Our Lord in Victoria is sending 200 copies of the New Testament printed in Hindi, Senegalese and Swahili to India, Senegal and The Congo as memorials to two of their members.

The New Testaments are in memory of Miss Muriel Harman, the Victoria missionary who was killed by rebel forces in The Congo last November, and Miss Florence Turner, a life-long member of the Church of Our Lord, who died in Victoria last fall.

"They gave their lives to spreading the gospel at home and abroad," said Bishop Denys Rankilor. "Our task is to carry on their work."

Date Not Known

Christ's Birthday Not Really On Christmas Day

No myth in the western world is more widely accepted, and yet so totally false, as the one that Jesus, the Christ, was born on Dec. 25, Harold V. O'Reilly writes in the Christmas issue of the Victoria Humanist magazine.

"Historians can find no record to place his birth on that or any other exact date," says Mr. O'Reilly.

"The word Christmas derives from the two words 'Christ's Mass,' a high mass first celebrated in the Roman church in the third century.

NO RELATIONSHIP

"At that time, however, it did not occur on Dec. 25, nor did it have any relationship to the birth of Jesus until the second half of the 4th century, AD."

Mr. O'Reilly says that the church decreed Dec. 25 as Christ's birthdate "primarily to attract the pagan cults who had long celebrated on or about that same day.

CALLED SACRILEGE

"The early Christians accused the church of idolatry, paganism and sacrilege for making Dec. 25 the birthday of Jesus."

The writer states Martin Luther tried to have the day abolished, that the English parliament outlawed it in 1644, as did the Puritans of New England.

"However," says Mr. O'Reilly, "when the restoration of Charles II took place in 1660, he reinstated Dec. 25 as the Saviour's birthday."

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

Tischendorf, a professor at Leipzig, when visiting a monastery on Mt. Sinai, saw a fuel bucket near a fireplace. Looking at the mouldy manuscripts written in Greek uncials, he relates, "At that moment the world turned upside-down in my head and I saw all the colors of the rainbow." He had discovered the famous manuscript of the New Testament, "Codex Sinaiticus."

It is a fortunate person who discovers the drama and dogma of the Christmas glory in the glitter and tinsel of holiday celebrations.

Recovered they must be. Not only has much that passes for Christian faith become watery and sentimental, but fragmentary heresies have caused great damage. Perversions of Christianity are spawning incalculable violence.

Christianity taught the priceless value of man, for whom all things were made. So a Godless rootless humanism has grown up, destroying institutions like the Sabbath and marriage, with a license which denies restraint.

Christianity taught the equality of man and his right to economic and social justice. From this crucible comes bloody revolutions, establishing communism and creating a fantastic medley of new nations.

Christianity taught the supremacy of truth, that lying is wrong, and that one must sit down before a fact as a little child. Now a Godless scientism (which happily does not include many of the finest of today's scientists) is alienated from Christian values and ethics.

Faith Brings Peace

Christianity taught that faith brought joy and peace. Thus a large number of people adopted the doctrine that Christianity consists of peace of mind, "Positive thinking", never criticizing nor condemning. The verbs used by Jesus — "Go," "Follow," "Take up your Cross" — are changed to the commendments "relax," "take it easy."

Wrenched from context, note the results of such perversions.

In Germany, the most scientific nation on earth, the Nazi movement grew up. Heisenberg, winner of the Nobel prize at age 30, whose principle of uncertainty is considered by Bronowski to be one of the two or three great scientific discoveries of this century, was attacked by the Nazis for supporting Einstein. Held in grave danger for months, he was finally rescued by Himmler. Himmler put Germany's greatest scientist to work proving his pet theory that the stars are made of ice!

Communism Unjust

Communism has caused enormous cruelties and injustices. Revolutions for racial equality increased racial hatred. Secularization of life by the humanists has meant that all the machinery and organizations of life are unbaptized and inhumane. The disintegration and eroticism of contemporary culture resembles the decline of the Roman Empire. Ceremonies and sacred calendars have been cast out by a corrupt and passion-smeared society. Democracy has been degraded into majority tyranny. Industrialism flourished under Christianity, but its detachment from faith has led to the depersonalization of the "mass man."

One could continue indefinitely to show how good things are debased when detached from religious roots. Christians live in the conditions of the early church when courage and faith are needed to conquer the rebel world for the Kingdom of God.

Aid Voted To Museum

On his motion, council agreed to make the proposal at a meeting of the inter-municipal committee.

Where the Wretched Meet

Halt, Blind, Lame Gather at Pool

Adjacent to the sheep market in Jerusalem was a mineral bath known as the Pool of Bethesda, which had become so famous for its reputed curative power that afflicted persons congregated there from far and near.

The pool was surrounded night and day by the blind, the deaf, the lame and halt, the maimed and the deformed, the withered, the sick and invalid of all ages.

Five porches had been built near the water to help shade and shelter these unfortunates.

It was not a pleasant sight, there at the pool, nor a pleasant sound: the moans and groans and wailings of the afflicted, grotesquely entwined with the bleating of the doomed sheep in the corrals of the nearby market.

It was of no use to bathe in this Hebrew "fountain of youth" at just anytime, for according to the legend an angel came down and "troubled the water," causing it occasionally to bubble up — as spring-fed mineral pools typically do— and when whoever was first to get into the water "was made whole of whatsoever disease he had."

The Miracles of Christmas

by John J Stewart

This sporadic motion of the water was thus anxiously awaited, and whenever it occurred there was a frantic, if unbrotherly, rush to be the first into it.

Some of the afflicted persons were aided in their effort by friends, but others had to make the attempt on their own.

One Sabbath day Jesus visited the area. He took notice of an elderly man lying on a dirty mattress. Through sin this man had brought a malady upon himself, and had been an invalid for 38 years. He had had much time to lament his misdeeds.

"Wilt thou be made whole?" Jesus asked him.

The old man looked up in despair. "Sir," he pleaded, "I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool, but while I am coming, another steps down before me."

Long deprived of the alleged miraculous power of the water, the afflicted man now was blessed with a miracle of Christmas: forgiving him of his sins and rebuking his illness, the Christ said to him, "Rise, take up they bed, and walk."

Instantly the man felt a wonderful surge of strength and vigor through his body, such as he had not known since youth.

"Immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked."

Adventurous New Forms

Anglican Prayer Book Draft First Revision in 300 Years

LONDON (AP) — The Church of England has taken a step toward bringing itself up to date with its first major revision of the Prayer Book in more than 300 years.

The measure, published Thursday, includes alternative forms of service recommended by the archbishops of Canterbury and York and approved by Parliament. They may be used in all English churches as from May 1 next year, if further approved by a two-thirds majority of the church assembly.

Among the changes:

- Simplified forms of morning and evening prayer with omission of the prayer for the monarch and Royal family hitherto obligatory.
- Three new litanies for the state, the church, and the common good.
- A simple form of thanksgiving after child birth instead of the outmoded churching of women.
- A prayer for use at the burial of suicides.
- A draft order for holy communion that would allow the maximum amount of experiment in the interpretation of eucharistic doctrine.

The new forms represent an attempt to get out of the liturgical straitjacket that has confined it since the Act of Uniformity of 1662. This act governs the Prayer Book. Most Rev. Michael Ramsay, archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England, told a press conference the new forms of service are "adventurous."

FIRST DRAFT

They will require further approval by Parliament after a 16 - year experimental period. Because the Church of England is state - established, it needs parliamentary approval to make changes in its forms of worship.

For the moment, there is only a first draft of a new service of holy communion. A liturgical commission is still working on a new service for holy baptism.

Successful Courses Spark New Series

Another course on Christian living, tentatively set for February, will be sponsored by the Anglican diocesan board of religious education following the success of the recently concluded Creative Years discussion course.

Rev. H. Gordon Walker, director of the study courses, said 46 persons, including several United and Baptist Church members took the course which was held each week from Oct. 24 to Dec. 12 at St. David's and St. Matthias.

The course planned for February will be based on J. Kirby's book The Kingdom, the Power and the Glory.

Laity Assumes Fuller Role in Government

Butler

As the differences between "high church" and "low church" have lessened among Anglicans, so the differences between the Anglican Church as a whole and the United Church as a whole are being lessened, Canon C. Hilary Butler of Victoria said in an interview.

"The 'high' churches were ones which had a high conception of the sacredness of the ordained ministry, the 'low' emphasized more the congregational idea," he said.

"The old 'high church' conception of a bishop tended to be of a man who had, by virtue of his consecration, autocratic powers within the church.

HIGH CHURCH

"This is being modified even by those who call themselves 'high church'."

Canon Butler said that in the Anglican Church the emphasis is increasingly on the bishop as the captain of a team, a team made up of clergy and laity.

ELECTED LAITY

Mr. Butler saw the change in emphasis as an approach to the Presbyterian type of church. In the Presbyterian and United Churches, members of the laity who are elected by general church membership as elders (Presbyterians) govern the church in matters of administration, including the appointment of the minister.

Can there be a meeting of the idea of government of the church by bishops (episcopacy) and government of the church by presbytery?

MODERN WORLD

"The churches whose authority is now vested in the congregation are now realizing that in the modern world, some central affiliations are needed.

"The centralized churches are regaining a sense of the importance of the local congregation."

Mr. Butler saw a coming together of the different viewpoints in a system of "bishop of presbytery." This new concept was recently worked out in conversations between the Church of England and the Church of Scotland.

The canon expected that a similar understanding between the United Church of Canada and the Anglican Church of Canada would provide the basis for an eventual union of the two churches.

He did not feel the "high church" people would be opposed.

PARISH LEVEL

He said the difference today between 'high' and 'low' on the parish level was more in the mode of worship than in the matter of authority — "more music, more ceremonial, more vestments, more concentration on the sacraments, and a tendency to call the priest father."

A 'high church' in Victoria is St. Barnabas'; in Vancouver, St. James'.

Although individual churches would continue to have individual differences, Mr. Butler foresaw the coming together of 'high' and 'low' and of the United Church and the Anglican in acceptance of the "bishop in presbytery" idea.

RECENT TIMES

"Most of us now regard this as the real New Testament pattern."

Mr. Butler pointed out modifications that have also taken place in recent times in the Roman Catholic Church.

"The autonomy of the pope is being modified by a sense of the collegiality of the bishops with the pope. And by the apostolate of the laity."

Mr. Butler saw theological divisions as they exist today as being more within the churches than between the churches — "not perpendicular divisions separating each church, but horizontal ones, running like strata through all churches, Baptist, Roman Catholic and United as well as Anglican."

Communion To Get 'Audition'

A new Protestant communion service will be "auditioned" at 9 a.m. this Sunday in Metropolitan United Church.

The new order of service was prepared by the committee on church worship of the United Church of Canada, and submitted to the church's constituent presbyteries.

It is described by the church as an order simplified, pruned of language archaisms and involving greater congregational participation.

After trials, appraisals and comments from presbyteries, a final draft of the provisional order will be prepared by the church.

Youth Groups Plan Dance

St. Luke's Anglican, First United and St. Peter's youth groups are sponsoring a Christmas dance to be held from 8:30 p.m. until 12:30 a.m. next Tuesday at First United fellowship hall, 934 Balmoral.

Those interested in dancing to The Yoemen on this occasion can get tickets at 75 cents single, $1.25 a couple by calling Wendy McCague at 383-4681, Gordon Callow at 477-1725, or Jim Batey at 384-8780.

Unitarians To Gather

Families of the Unitarian Church of Victoria will gather from 2 to 4:30 p.m. today in the Old Age Pensioners' Hall, Government and Pandora, for a Christmas tree decorating party.

Carols, games and stories will complement the decorating bee. Each child will also bring a gift to a needy child elsewhere in the world.

Civil Suit Follows Prank

OTTAWA (CP) — Judgment was reserved Friday in the Supreme court of Canada on a $180,000 damage action arising from a Halloween prank.

Robert M. Jennings, 52, a Barrie, Ont., business executive was put in hospital for life and his wife was killed when two cars collided Nov 5, 1961, in an intersection of a concession road and Ontario Highway 12 just south of Beaverton.

Evidence showed that a stop sign on the concession road where it meets the highway had been turned in the wrong direction by schoolboys four days earlier — the day after Halloween.

An action was launched against the Ontario highways department for failure to maintain the highway properly and against Garry Cronsberry, 23, of Toronto, driver of the second car which entered the intersection from the concession road without making a stop.

At the trial, the Jennings family was awarded damages of $145,795. The department was ordered to pay 80 per cent, Cronsberry the remainder.

Resurrection Now Promises Witness

The time is at hand for the resurrection of the dead to take place, Reginald Arnett, district supervisor of Jehovah Witnesses told 1,154 persons in Sanscha Hall, Sidney last Sunday.

Mr. Arnett said that man is a mortal soul, that the human dead are unconscious, but that "Jehovah the Almighty can and will raise the dead."

However, for most, said Mr. Arnett, the resurrection will be merely an "earthly" one.

"Only a limited number will receive a heavenly resurrection.

"The fulfillment of Bible prophecy shows that the time is at hand for the resurrection of the dead to take place.

"In the new order," said the speaker, "there will be no more death, but men will live in a peaceful world enjoying everlasting life and happiness on a paradise earth."

SAN FRANCISCO—Victoria Maple Leafs and San Francisco Seals played some pretty tight hockey games this season, but none so close and thrilling as the one that the Seals won here in Friday night overtime, 4-3.

In three previous games, the clubs battled to 3-3 and 1-1 draws in Victoria with the Leafs overcoming an 0-3 deficit in the first meeting and the Seals were beaten, 4-3, in San Francisco when Bob Barlow got three goals.

Last night's scores: Seattle 5 at Vancouver 0; VICTORIA 3 at San Francisco 4 (overtime).

Barlow appeared to get special attention in this game, and the Seals were successful in keeping him pointless.

Winger Ron Harris, one of the lower-scoring members of the Seals, provided the goal that knocked off the Leafs. He scored it at 5:41 of overtime against the run of play after some loose clearing.

The goal was the capper to a comeback of large proportions. Seals had gone ahead 1-0 in the first period but had failed right away in the second as Leafs tore into them for a 3-1 lead.

BUD PRAISES

After that, the game belonged to the Seals. Team manager Bud Poile declared after the game that it was the best third period his club has played all season and there were no doubters in the crowd of 4,957 that whooped it up in the cavernous Cow Palace.

Seals' playing-coach Charlie Burns got them on the road to victory, outlucking Victoria goalie Al Millar in a two-man juggling act in front of the net at 2:40 of the third period. It was a high shot out from the left corner that Millar tried to trap but failed.

DROUGHT ENDED

Al Nicholson, who hadn't scored since October, tied up the game at 5:08, driving right in on top of Millar after he had smothered Harris' close-in attempt. After that, with the up-and-down crowd now solidly behind them, the Seals started throwing their weight around and Leafs seemed to sag although they had the odd good chance before overtime.

Harris, later the hero, took a tripping penalty at 18:13 and was just leaving the penalty box when Lou Jankowski tied it up for Victoria at 19 seconds of the second period.

Jankowski, who had scored the last three goals for Victoria in their 5-1 win over Los Angeles last Tuesday, then made it five in a row at 12:06.

CARRYING PLAY

Leafs carried the play through the rest of the second period, even though they took both the penalties given out by referee Lloyd Gilmour. Oddly enough, all five penalties in a clean but rugged game were for tripping.

Milan Marcetta made it 3-1, tipping in a long shot by Sandy Hucul. The goal gave Marcetta the league lead, one more than teammate Bob Barlow, who had a couple of good power play chances late in the first period but was rather a frustrated young man the rest of the way.

Nationals Play Badly Russians Breeze, 6-2

WINNIPEG (CP)—Russia took full advantage of a sloppy opposition performance to rout the Canadian national team, 6-2, in an international hockey game played here Friday night before 9,800 fans.

Employing their usual accurate passing and precise positional plays, the Russians rammed home three power-play goals to grab their third win in as many games over the Canadian national team.

Russia now has won four of five games on its Canadian tour, defeating the Nationals 4-0 and 8-6 in previous games, the Ontario Hockey Association junior all-stars, 4-3, and losing, 1-2, to the bolstered junior Montreal Canadiens.

Veteran-forward Vyatcheslav Starshinov led the winners with three goals, one on a power play and another when he was penalty-killing.

Vladimir Vikulov, Victor Polupanov and Vladimir Brezhnev scored the other Russians goals while defencemen Paul Conlin and Terry O'Malley got the Canadian goals.

Conlin opened the scoring but sloppy passing, penalties and a defence that was often lured embarrassingly out of position soon opened the door for the visitors.

A spearing penalty to Fran Huck was followed by the tying goal, then Starshinov put the Russians ahead to stay when O'Malley was serving time for holding the puck.

O'Malley got it to 2-3 before the end of the first period but the Canadians couldn't tie it when the Russians drew penalties only 73 seconds apart at the start of the second period and the jig was up.

Vikulov put his club ahead, 4-2, and then another penalty to Huck saw Polupanov cash in. A break gave Starshinov his third goal and the Russians were content to play safely in the scoreless third period.

RUSSIA: Goal—Konovalenko, Zinger. Defence—Ragulin, Kuskin, Bregenev, Zaitev, Davidov, Brezhnev. Forwards—Alexandrov, Firsov, Polupanov, Vikulov, Striganov, Jurianov, Yakushev, Starshinov, Mayorov, Almetov.

Last night's score: Army 8, Esquimalt 3.

Army got a stay of execution from the Esquimalt Hockey League last night, and it helped kill Esquimalt Pontiacs.

League officials decided that the four Army players who received a game suspension for fighting in a game against Navy one week earlier would serve the penalty the next time Army met the Sailors rather than last night.

So the Army had all the troops last night and clubbed Pontiacs 8-3.

Pick Figure-Skater For Marsh Trophy

Miss Burka won by a 4-1 margin. Also nominated were Dan Sherry, who set a world swim record this year; Fon Feagan (harness racing), Pacita Weidel (fencing), Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita (hockey), George Knudson (golf), Bill Crothers (athletics), and George Chuvalo (boxing).

Mrs. Ellen Burka, Petra's mother, said recent reports her daughter would turn professional soon were "greatly exaggerated."

But she added: "Unless we get some form of subsidy such as is available in other sports, it will be impossible to maintain her as an amateur for three more years."

Miss Burka's ambition to compete in the 1968 Olympics might not be realized.

Miss Burka, who has turned down offers as high as $100,000 to skate professionally, leaves for Europe next week and has exhibitions in the Bavarian Alps at Christmas and in Berlin at New Year.

Pro to Conduct Skating Clinic

A clinic to demonstrate the requirements of the new series of national skating tests will be conducted Sunday from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at Memorial Arena, conducted by Guy Nick, professional for Victoria Figure Skating Club.

The new series of tests, recently introduced in Ottawa, will be open to skaters at any level—public, club, speed, figure and minor hockey skaters. They are designed to introduce all the elements of skating and are planned for beginners as well as experienced skaters.

There are 12 tests, and badges may be procured for 25 cents for each test passed if desired, but there will be no charge for taking the test.

Sunday's is merely to show the requirements of the tests. Details on actual testing will be announced later. Admission to the clinic is free.

City Fivepinner On Great Streak

By JIM TAYLOR

About the hottest fivepinner around the city these days is John Broste, whose average of around 274 is tops in the district.

This week Broste threw a 1,006 series at Gibson's, as well as an 858; and added an 849 at Town and Country Lanes. That series at Gibson's included his third 400 game of the season, and came within a pin of a perfect game.

Norm Goldie, who rolled a perfect 450 in the Mr. and Mrs. Tournament at Mayfair Lanes recently, collected his prizes this week — $1,000 in cash and another $100 in merchandise prizes.

You don't think picking up spares is as important as getting strikes? Consider the case of Larry Elford, who bowls in our Colonist League at Aurora Lanes.

In one three-game set, Elford had 15 strikes, including a turkey and two doubles. His total was 497, his high game 179. He shot only five spares.

Reta Clarke had an all-spare game of 175 in her 505 tenpin series this week at Mayfair Lanes.

Men's city handicap tenpin tournament will be bowled at Mayfair, with team event Feb. 5-6 and singles and doubles Feb. 12-13. Entry fee is $4.00 per man per event, and all-events is optional.

To Sit It Out

Seth Martin, playing coach of the Rossland team in the Western International Hockey League, won't be playing for WIHL All-Stars against touring Russian team in Spokane Saturday. He has just received 12-day suspension following second match misconduct penalty of season on Dec. 11.

Canucks Discover Max Had It Right

General-manager Max McNab insisted that Canucks' 10-1 win over Seattle Totems the last time they met here didn't mean a thing. And he was right, because Totems turned around and whipped Canucks, 5-0, last night.

Led by goalkeeper Ernie Wakeley, who posted his second straight shutout, Totems grabbed a 2-0 first-period lead on goals by Earl Heiskala and Larry Lund, got two more in the second from Don Ward and Guyle Fielder, and added another in the third from Len Haley.

WINNING BATTLE

Wakely, now sharing Seattle goaltending with Jim McLeod, made 34 stops to thwart Canucks and hand them their seventh loss in eight games. In 12 games, Wakely has a 2.58 goals-against average and would seem to have won the job from McLeod, whose mark is 4.46 for 13 games after being selected to the Western Hockey League all-star team last season.

Lund, the Penticton forward obtained from San Francisco for rights to two amateurs, is another to help the improving Totems. His goal last night was his fifth in six games with Totems.

There were only 2,675 fans in attendance, smallest crowd of the season here.

It's Really Simon Pure

SEATTLE (AP)—The University of Washington has a hockey team but it's too early yet to say if the Huskies are doing anything more about the sport than getting their toes cold.

Unsalaried head coach Murray Costello—he was drafted by the players—doesn't even know the lineup yet but he says his team has been challenged to a series of six games by Gonzaga and to a clash or two by Oregon State.

The university neither finances nor recognizes hockey as a school sport. Costello, publicity director for the Western Hockey League, once played for the Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings.

When asked by officials of a local amateur circuit to tutor a University of Washington team Costello said he accepted to "get a few laughs and a little ice time." He was astounded by a turnout of 25, some of whom had experience.

As for practice, the team turns out at a rink where everybody pays to get in—even the coach.

Who Is Cassius? To the Irish Just an Also Ran

By JIM CONWAY

LONDON (CP)—Around Dublin, when they say "he's the greatest," they're not talking about Cassius Clay.

The object of such praise is Arkle, a ton of rippling horseflesh rated as the best steeplechaser in action today.

The eight - year - old gelding has leaped and galloped through 29 races so far in his career, winning 23.

He has collected more than £57,000 ($171,000) — big money in steeplechasing — for his owner, Anne, Duchess of Westminster, has smashed records and made life miserable for bookies foolish enough to give high odds on the black-legged bay.

The duchess bought the horse at a Dublin auction in 1960 for £1,150 and named him after a mountain on her Scottish estate. She entered him in an unimportant three - mile steeplechase at Navan near Dublin in 1962 and he won at 20 to 1.

Three years and 22 victories later, bookies were cautiously taking bets on Arkle for the recent Hennessy Gold Cup at Newbury at rock-bottom odds of 6 to 1.

One by one, Arkle has turned back all the challengers, including Mill House, an English eight-year-old. Both horses are at their best over three miles and have met five times at that distance. Arkle was beaten in the 1963 Hennessy but has beaten Mill House four times.

In their last meeting — the Gallaher Gold Cup at Sandown Park in November—Arkle carried the maximum 175 pounds and still clipped 11 seconds off the track record. Mill House with 159 pounds was third, 24 lengths back.

HAS HEART

What's Arkle's secret? "Heart," says his Irish trainer, Thomas Dreaper. Arkle has an exceptionally strong heart and an easy temperament. He is always the quietest horse in the lineup before a race. "He conserves all his fire for the race," Dreaper says.

Arkle receives little special treatment. He's fed six raw eggs and two bottles of Irish stout daily along with plenty of oats and hay. But he works out with the other horses on Dreaper's farm at Greenogue, near Dublin, giving rides to the local children and helping round up stray cattle.

PROVING TO DO

While acknowledged as the greatest steeplechaser of this generation, Arkle hasn't satisfied everyone that he is the greatest ever. He has yet to prove conclusively that he is better than the all-time champion Golden Miller.

The Miller made his contemporaries look like cart-horses in the mid-1930s when he won an unprecedented 30 races in Britain. He stormed around the Grand National course at Aintree near Liverpool setting a record for the 4½-mile race that experts say would never have been equalled if the circuit hadn't later been modified.

It's unlikely Arkle will ever run in the gruelling 30-fence National. His owner says she won't risk him in a race where the danger is so high. But he should be able to keep going for at least another three years and may well prove that he really is the greatest.

Five Points Comfy Lead For Clippers

	GP	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Nanaimo	16	13	2	1	107	63	[illegible]
Powell River	13	9	2	2	101	41	21
Port Alberni	17	6	10	1	[illegible]	105	13
Comox	16	2	14	0	49	137	4

In the past week's action, Nanaimo beat Port Alberni, 6-2, and played to a 3-3 draw at Powell River. The tie was worth one point to Nanaimo and two to Powell River, since under the abbreviated schedule one game between Powell River and each of the other clubs is worth four points to the mainlanders if they win, two if they tie.

In other games, Port Alberni beat Comox, 16-1 and 7-3.

Cancel Swim

Victoria Amateur Swimming Club has cancelled this year's plans for the annual Christmas Day Swim in the Inner Harbor.

A committee has decided that because of construction work being done nearby the water is unfit for swimming.

In Cup Final

Veteran Ron Jenkin will be in action at wing-half for Canadian Scottish today in Jackson Cup soccer final against Brodies Bakery at 2 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park.

Falcons Share His Wealth

Rankin Sends Them Bankin'

ATLANTA (UPI) — Insurance - executive Rankin Smith, reputed to be worth $50,000,000, said when he won a National Football League franchise for Atlanta that he would spend whatever was needed to give this southern city a contender.

It appears that Smith has been true to his word.

Thursday, he signed All-American defensive back Nick Rassas of Notre Dame and thereby completed a clean sweep of every draft choice the Falcons are eligible to sign at this time.

HE'S HAPPY

Smith and Rassas both refused to say how much the contract was for, but it was good enough to lure the 185-pound halfback, the nation's leading college punt return man, away from the San Diego Chargers of the American Football League.

"It was a very fair contract, I'm very happy with it," Rassas said when he flew here for a news conference.

The Falcons signed their No. 1 draft choice, Texas linebacker Tommy Nobis for an estimated $225,000 Tuesday and picked up their No. 2 pick, Texas A & I quarterback Randy Johnson for a reported $100,000, right after the draft ended several weeks ago.

As the newest team in the NFL, Atlanta got the first and last choices in each of the first five rounds and Rassas was the Falcons' first choice on the second round.

They have now signed 17 of their 25 draftees but will have to wait until after the various bowl games before going after the others.

Rassas had been San Diego's No. 2 choice and the Falcons also got the Chargers' No. 5 choice Thursday when they signed University of Miami (Fla.) halfback Russell Smith as a free agent since he wasn't drafted by an AFL team.

GOOD ONES LEFT

Among the selections the Falcons must wait to sign are end Charles Casey of Florida, an Alanta native; Arkansas guard Mike Bender; and Alabama quarterback Steve Sloan, the man who broke a lot of the records set by Joe Namath before Namath became a $400,000 member of the AFL.

Rassas, whose father played at Notre Dame in the 1938-40 seasons, said he made up his mind to sign with the Falcons after visiting Atlanta 10 days ago.

As an aside at the Rassas news conference, Smith announced that the Falcons have already sold more than 35,000 season tickets for their 1966 debut.

Now Only 13 Are Fit

Brentwood XV Injury Hit

EDINBURGH (CP)—An injury-hit touring rugby team from Brentwood College, Victoria, lost its fourth straight British game here Friday. Lorretto Public School of Edinburgh shut out the Canadians 15-0.

The visitors now have only 13 fit players out of 20 and their final game is coming up Tuesday in Glasgow. Rugby union requires 15 men a side.

David White of Duncan, B.C., was carried off the field Friday with an injured back. Dai Williams of Parksville, Vancouver Island, suffered a bruised hip. Both received medical attention.

Team captain Terry Kirby of Vancouver was sidelined with torn cartilege in his right knee, Wade Cripps of Prince George, B.C., has a suspected cheekbone fracture and Roger Fuller of Los Angeles has a torn thigh muscle—all injuries from previous games. Fuller is limping but played Friday to give Brentwood a full roster.

Phil (Skip) Stothert of Prince Rupert, B.C., was out of Friday's game with a twisted ankle and is a doubtful starter Tuesday. Brock Squire of Vancouver is out with tonsilitis.

Team coach Dai Rees said he may seek permission to play with his team in Glasgow or Brentwood may borrow Scottish players to complete the five-game schedule.

The tourists lost their first game 12-9 Dec. 8 at Wimbledon, their second 19-3 at Eastbourne Dec. 10 and were shut out 22-0 by Edinburgh academy Wednesday.

Argos Sign Quarterback

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League announced Wednesday night the signing of quarterback Wallace Gabler, 21, of the University of Michigan.

Gabler, six feet two inches, was his team's leading scorer with 42 points on seven touchdowns.

New End Signed By Lions

Latest to sign on for a tryout is Len Frketich, a tall, 230-pound end who tried out this season with San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League.

Frketich attended the University of Oregon from 1962 to 1964 and returned to complete his college degree after being dropped by the 49ers.

Ashe Holds Davis Cup Key

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—Arthur Ashe of Los Angeles will do much in deciding the makeup of the Australian Davis Cup team that defends the international tennis trophy against Spain later this month.

Harry Hopman, captain-manager of the Australians, made that decision Friday when he paired Ashe, first Negro to win an Australian state title against both Roy Emerson and Fred Stolle in a weekend exhibition.

The exhibition is modelled after the cup competition with two singles Saturday followed later that same day with the doubles. On Sunday, two concluding singles will be played. Ashe meets Stolle in the opening singles and pairs with Cliff Richey of Dallas in the doubles against John Newcombe and Tony Roche.

On Sunday, Ashe will take on Emerson, rated the world's best until a slump upon his return home from a world tour several months ago.

Ashe has beaten Emerson twice in recent weeks here. Neither Hopman nor Emerson appeared worried at first but Friday the captain was keenly disappointed when Emerson and Stolle lost to Newcombe and Roche in the rain delayed doubles final of the Victorian championships, 9-7, 9-7, 8-6.

Hopman previously had indicated he would use Emerson and Stolle all the way in the matches with Spain but now may rest them in doubles. Should either do poorly against Ashe, he may change his singles assignments as well.

Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., normally a doubles player, is subbing for the injured Clark Graebner of Beechwood, Ohio, as the second United States singles player in the exhibitions.

U.K. Open Four Days

EDINBURGH (Reuters)—Changes will be made in the format of the British Open golf championship for 1966.

The 72-hole British Open will be played next year over four days — July 6-9 — instead of the traditional three, with one round of 18 holes each day. It will be played at Muirhead, East Lothian, Scotland.

Male Voices Noticeably Absent

Choral Society Gives Fine Festive Concert

By WILLIAM THOMAS

Victoria Choral Society under the direction of Rodney Webster offered a varied program of seasonal music at the McPherson Playhouse Friday evening. It will be repeated tonight at 8:30 p.m.

The first portion of the program was given over to carols of many lands. First sacred music of the Americas and then European offerings.

Highlight of the first group was the Huron Carol. This work by Father Brebeuf interprets the Christmas story in terms of pioneer Canada. The carol by this early missionary is well worth the hearing.

They lacked harmonic variety so that it was hard, at times, to tell where one ended and the next began.

Certainly the most difficult problem facing Mr. Webster is the make-up of his choir. There is a great imbalance due to the lack of male voices.

Fewer than a dozen tenors can hardly contribute much to color and shading when they are pitted against the voices of close to 60 women. They did their best.

Bass Stanley Martin provided some enjoyable moments and it would be nice to hear more of him.

The second portion of the offering was given over to the first half of the Schering-Soldan edition of Handel's Messiah.

Imported Coolers High in Bacteria--Martin

Ice Balls Contaminated

Get rid of those freezable plastic ice novelties in the refrigerator—they are a health hazard, Health Minister Eric Martin warned Friday.

Laboratory examination of freezable plastic novelties now being sold throughout B.C. "has revealed gross contamination of the water contained in a high proportion of these novelties," he said.

"Although no case of illness has so far been reported as a result of contact with these products, it is felt that they do constitute a serious potential health hazard and that they should not be used."

Mr. Martin said the most marked pollution seems to be in novelties imported from Hong Kong, although contamination of Japanese and West German products was also found.

Meanwhile Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer of the metropolitan board of health, said a high count of intestinal bacteria had been isolated during examinations of the contents of the plastic novelties.

No action can be taken against the selling of the novelties, the health officer said. "If somebody wants to drink water from a ditch it is entirely up to the person concerned."

156 This Year—47 Last

Hepatitis Cases Triple

By JIM BRAHAN

Infectious hepatitis in Greater Victoria has tripled this year compared to 1964, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said Friday.

The senior medical health officer of the Metropolitan Board of Health said there have been 156 cases of the disease reported in the area to Dec. 10.

He said last year's total was 47, and there were 37 cases reported in 1963.

SEVEN CASES

There have been seven cases in the metropolitan district so far this month, four of them in the Colwood-Langford area.

The disease, a virus infection that attacks the liver and produces infection, has struck all parts of Greater Victoria and surrounding districts.

HARDEST HIT

Colwood and Langford area, which includes Happy Valley, has been hardest hit with 35 known cases, 20 of them in the valley.

Dr. Whitbread said it could be considered an epidemic in Happy Valley because of the area's small population.

BREAKDOWN

Saanich had 47 cases, the city 44, Esquimalt 12, Oak Bay 3, Sidney, Central Saanich and North Saanich a total of seven, and Sooke one case.

Gulf Islands so far have been the only area free of the infection.

SPREAD BY DIRT

The disease is spread by polluted water, and personal uncleanliness, the health officer said. Its occurrence is greatest in areas lacking sewer and water system.

Many of the cases are spread by personal contact, because the disease has an incubation period from one to three weeks, the doctor said.

DIFFICULT TO TRACE

Mild cases of the disease are sometimes mistaken for 'flu.

Dr. Whitbread said it is very difficult to trace the source of the disease.

"Personal hygiene is the answer to the spread of this type of a disease," the physician said.

IMMUNITY

He also advocated that food preparation should be carried out in a sanitary way.

People who have been in contact with known hepatitis cases can be given a temporary immunity to the disease by injections of gamma globulin, a blood derivative containing antibodies to the disease.

Sailors Hurt In Collision

Two sailors were taken to HMCS Naden Hospital late Friday after a traffic accident at Colville and Lampson.

In good condition were LS John King, HMCS Qu'Appelle, and AB Walter Ruffel, HMCS Oriole, injured when cars driven by AB Ruffel and Albert Cooper, 559 Hurst, collided at 10:45 p.m.

Checkpoints Nail 35 Errant Drivers

Victoria city police held its first traffic check of the Christmas season Friday night.

Three checkpoints, using nine auxiliary policemen and eight traffic officers, checked 1,217 cars in seven hours.

More than 400 warning tickets were issued.

Police department spokesmen said there would probably be at least one more road check in the Christmas season.

Meanwhile, Colwood RCMP detachment held its third Christmas season traffic check Friday.

'Heaps' Stay Away

Cars which are in the worst condition are not being brought in for voluntary testing and will probably never be brought in until testing is put on a compulsory basis, B.C. motor vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield said Friday.

He was commenting on the complaints of two members of the B.C. Automotive Retailers' Association here who said that "people who know they are driving a wreck won't go" to the volunteer mobile testing units.

MAKE IT MANDATORY

The ARA members, secretary-manager Lloyd Kinneard and garage owner Stan Hitchman, said they advocate compulsory car testing under control of the provincial government.

Mr. Hadfield confirmed that "a lot of cars mechanically unsafe are being operated on the streets of Victoria.

"It seems apparent that a lot of these vehicles are never going to be tested until testing is put on a compulsory basis," he said.

MANY REJECTS

Only those who think they will pass the test are using the mobile testing unit, and even at that 59 per cent of the cars were rejected during the volunteer tests here from Nov. 30 to Dec. 4, he said.

Rejection average in other parts of the province is 67 per cent but this is no indication that cars in Greater Victoria are in better condition.

LOWER HERE

The percentage is lower here because people are starting to bring their cars back for the second and third time after fixing up things which were wrong on their previous trips through.

"We are getting the people who are conscious of the condition of their cars. We want them too, but we also want the cars which are not fixed," Mr. Hadfield said.

Nothing Daunts Pedestrian

Homeward-bound bakeshop employee Gordy Stewart, 1982 Carnarvon, isn't stopped by anything, not even Johnson Street bridge on the fritz. Christmas shoppers lost much of season's spirit as police struggled to reroute traffic around balking bridge.—(William Boucher)

Stadium Start Just Step Away

By BARRY JOHNSON

REQUESTED

This approval was requested this week by the inter-municipal committee.

Final approval will probably come when the stadium committee's utilization group reports early next week.

JUST A POINT

Only one point in the committee's recommendations has proved contentious—a suggestion that some maintenance cost be paid by the municipalities.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt said earlier his council is satisfied with all recommendations but this.

FOR EVERYONE

Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich said municipal participation in maintenance costs would help keep the stadium becoming solely "a university stadium."

He suggested a figure of $10,000 a year to be shared by the municipalities.

Advance Peek By 70

By BILL STAVDAL

Seventy outstanding junior matriculation students of Greater Victoria will again have an advance look at university this winter.

For the second year the University of Victoria is holding a series of lectures and discussion groups entitled the World of Learning. The talks are an early introduction to higher education says Ronald Jeffels, registrar and dean of student affairs.

13 SCHOOLS

Thirteen public and private schools of the area have chosen five or more distinguished students to attend the seven lectures. They will be held Saturday mornings at the university from Jan. 15 to March 5.

The wide-ranging topics are aimed at stimulating the imagination and helping guide a choice of careers, rather than beginning a formal university education.

Faculty lecturers will touch on war and civil rights, mathematics as the language of science, the humanities, man's place in the world, medicine and other subjects.

DISCUSS ISSUES

The students will discuss the issues after hearing lectures.

"The idea is to get the best students and give them a taste of university lectures and learning," says Clive Kelly, principal of Esquimalt High School.

TALK UP INTEREST

"They talk to others and create an interest in going to university. 'It teaches students what to expect, it challenges their imagination and intellectual development."

Children See Sea Garden

The Underseas Gardens will be visited by the younger section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society at 1:30 p.m. today. They will meet at the Douglas-Hillside parking lot.

Organize Or No Is Question

A decision on whether to become a town or remain unorganized territory will be made by ratepayers in the View Royal fire district today. The poll at View Royal Elementary School, 218 Helmcken, will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. The controversial subject has been kicked around for more than a year and is expected to draw a heavy vote.

Santa Shipping Out

Sea-going Santa Claus Don Paulin makes ready for two-day toy distributing trip in the San Juan and Gulf Islands this weekend. Jaycee-sponsored cruise will touch in at remote points in San Juan Islands and Gulf Islands. Santa will be handing out candies and presents to island children with the gaily decorated ship and recorded carols playing as background. This makes the third year of the event. —(Ian McKain)

VMD Men Just Whittle Waiting for an Order

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Victoria Machinery Depot general manager Capt. J. V. Steele hinted Friday the firm is ready for another order — while handing over to Premier Bennett the brand new Mv. Bowen Queen, 23rd vessel to join the fleet of B.C. ferries.

"Now that we've finished the ferry we are all standing around without much to do," he said, adding that when sailors are waiting for another ship they often sit around whittling on a piece of wood.

Capt. Steele then presented the premier with a three-dimensional, wooden wall plaque of the Bowen Queen on a choppy sea, which he said was carved by VMD employee Tony Konings, who was "a'whittling while waiting for the next order."

B.C. Ferries general manager Monty Aldous stepped in to say that "another $6,500,000 job will be coming up in a few months" —the Queen of Prince Rupert which is to be finished in March, 1967.

Premier Bennett told those gathered on deck in near-freezing weather for the acceptance ceremony that British Columbia has "the finest, best and largest ferry fleet in the world."

He said he is sure that Victoria and the entire province will derive a tremendous benefit from these vessels and said the government was fortunate in having VMD so close at hand.

THREE LOUNGES

The Bowen Queen, third and last in her class to be built by VMD, will go into service Jan. 3 on the Horseshoe Bay-Bowen Island run.

She can carry 240 passengers and 50 cars, has moulded fibreglass seats in her three lounges and has a self-service snack bar on the boat deck level.

The new ferry is a replacement for the smaller Bowen Queen, which will be renamed the Mv. Vesuvius Queen and shifted to the Vesuvius-Crofton run in the Gulf Islands.

Short Verse Honors Bowen Queen

Premier Bennett called from the sidelines city insurance man Fred McGregor, who quoted these words he had prepared for the occasion:

"No ferries to Vancouver,
We know not what to do.

Then appeared our Premier
Said he would see us through.

He called for contracts,
Asked for bids from one and all,

And we are very happy,

Harold Husband heard his call.

He bid and got the contract
At a price so very low

To show world-wide builders

The skill his men could show.
Today we've had a journey
On this ship so fine
Which will bring millions
To enjoy our lovely clime."

Bidding for a Happy Christmas

500 Fund Grows With Toy Auction

It was an auction with a heart.

And even auctioneer Brooke Tomlin himself joined in the bidding.

When all was done, $412 had been rattled up on the till earmarked for the Colonist 500 fund.

That's how it was as toys by the cartonload went on the block at Maynard and Sons auction room Friday night—and were knocked down by the cartonload to eager bidders, who numbered 100 at the height of the activity.

Everybody got a bargain, some it appeared enough bargains to satisfy a family of twelve.

Most important, other families will be satisfied this Christmas by the dollars they gave.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

On Sunday His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes will attend the annual service of carols and lessons at Christ Church Cathedral. That evening the Salvation Army Citadel Band will play selection of Christmas carols in the ballroom at Government House.

Wed at St. John's

Mexico City Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. William Dillworth Armstrong left by air for Mexico City and on to Vera Cruz for their honeymoon following their marriage in St. John's Anglican Church. The bride is the former Susan Joy Chapple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Edward Chapple, 1930 Dean Park Road, Saanichton, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Armstrong, North Devon, England, and the late Mr. William Dillworth Armstrong.

Canon Graham B. Baker officiated at the double-ring, candlelight ceremony. Boys of St. John's choir led the procession and also sang traditional songs during signing of the register. Mr. Kenneth Ansdell was organist.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a floor-length gown of rich ivory-faced peau de soie, in Edwardian style. The elegant gown featured a bustle and appliques of re-embroidered Swiss lace enhanced the fitted bodice which was styled with lily point sleeves and bateau neckline. A sweeping veil of illusion net fell from a lace appliqued coronet and for "something old" the bride wore her great-grandmother's gold and pearl pin. Gardenias, freesia and ivy were in her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Stephen Gemmell, as matron of honor for her cousin, was in a floor-length gown of antique gold chiffon over silk styled with floating back panel and matching peau de soie rose and soft bow at waistline. She wore a wedding band headdress en tone and carried a cascade of deep gold daisy chrysanthemums and ivy.

Mr. John Douglas of Halifax, N.S., was best man. Ushering guests to their pews were Mr. Don Chapple and Robert Chapple, brothers of the bride.

Bride's grandmother, Mrs. P. E. Doncaster, and aunt, Mrs. W. W. Gemmell presided at the tea table at the reception which followed in Oak Bay Beach Hotel. A three-tiered cake decorated with rosebuds and flanked by an arrangement of white and pink carnations and chrysanthemums centred the table.

World Health Needs Qualified Nurses

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian nurse who heads the nursing section of the World Health Organization in Geneva says the organization urgently needs over 50 well-qualified nurses to fill positions as nurse educators.

Dr. Lyle Creelman, a Nova Scotia native who grew up in Vancouver, told a reporter here that W.H.O. particularly needs French-speaking nurses to serve in several African countries and in Laos and Cambodia.

"Our nurses now work in over 70 countries in a variety of jobs—helping countries to prepare their own nursing personnel and improve schools of nursing."

The organization sets high qualifications. Its nurses must be university trained and have experience in administrative or education fields at home.

"Professional qualifications are very important, but even more important are the personal qualifications. The nurse who serves with W.H.O. must have the ability to adjust to a widely-varying set of conditions."

FEW LEAVE IT

Dr. Creelman, who has worked for W.H.O. in Geneva since 1949 and who became its chief nursing officer in 1954, says few nurses leave the world service once they have served their first two years of duty.

Because of the qualifications and experience needed to work as a nurse educator for W.H.O., the average age of Dr. Creelman's nurses is about 45. "But we want to interest the younger women in this work too. Youth is often a great asset in the sort of position our nurses find themselves filling."

The salary range for the organization's nurses is $6,130 to $11,420 annually in U.S. funds, plus living allowances. Other benefits include six weeks annual leave and paid home leave every two years.

Dr. Creelman who was with public health nursing for the metropolitan health committee of Vancouver prior to her appointment to W.H.O., is combining business and holidays on her own home leave this year.

VISIT VANCOUVER

She will be in Canada until early in January and plans to visit nursing schools and hospital administrators in Montreal and possibly Quebec City before going to Vancouver for Christmas.

Dr. Creelman is a graduate of the University of British Columbia School of Nursing, Columbia University in New York City and holds an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of New Brunswick.

She makes her home in Geneva, where the World Health Organization has its headquarters, but her work involves frequent travel. In 1964, for example, she was in Leopoldville in The Congo, Moscow and New Delhi. She plans another trip to the USSR next year.

CPO MEETING

The Chiefs and Petty Officers Association will hold their regular meeting, Tuesday, Dec. 21, at 8 p.m., in the Chiefs' Mess.

Eight Join Jaycee-ettes

Several former members of the club attended the Christmas meeting of the Victoria Jaycee-ettes held recently at the Colonial Inn. Mrs. P. Scurrah, honorary member, was a special guest.

Mrs. H. Yip reported that a turkey would be purchased and delivered to the Elford Occupational Centre in time for Christmas dinner.

New members inducted at a candle-light ceremony were Mrs. D. Hardy, Mrs. B. Squirrel, Mrs. G. Nairn, Mrs. Le Brun, Mrs. D. Dakers, Mrs. D. Kier, Mrs. H. Yip and Mrs. Devlin.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I appreciated your letter to the 42-year-old woman who became pregnant. When her child was small she was constantly being mistaken for his grandmother and it was embarrassing. Something similar happened to me and I'd like to tell you how I handled it.

I was 40 years old and had two children in high school when my third child was born. No one was more surprised than I. When I took the baby out in the perambulator people used to stop me and say, "Oh what a darling baby. Your granddaughter? I replied, "No — my sister. Mom let me take her out for some air."

The astonishment on their faces worked wonders for my morale. I hope others will try it.—BJC

Dear BJC: An answer like yours can be priceless in a crisis. Thanks, Sister.

Dear Ann Landers: Here I sit in the classroom looking over the exams of 30 students. My school day will end in 30 minutes and I'll go home to my 67-year-old mother. I mustn't be late because Mother worries.

I was one of those dutiful daughters who stayed home to comfort my widowed mother when Dad died. That was 11 years ago. I am 33 now and the sole breadwinner for the family. After rent, food, utilities and doctor bills there is little left.

But my real problem is that I feel trapped! I can't tolerate Mother's whining, her criticism of my clothes, my hair, my friends. If I am a half hour late from school she questions me as if I were a child. I have suggested to her that she get a job. Her health is good and she could work. Not only would it help financially but it would give her an interest in living. She cries and says I am ungrateful.

I have been offered a fine position out West. Do you think a new environment will help? If I take it Mom will move with me. What should I do? —CRACKING UP

Dear Cracking: Accept the offer and insist that your mother take a part-time job when you get out West—even if it's only baby-sitting a few hours a day.

It takes two to create the problem you have—a domineering mother and a daughter who allows herself to be dominated. So throw away the crying towel, Girl. It's now or never.

Antique Telephones Ringing Up Millions

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Antique and reproductions of antique telephones are ringing up a multi-million dollar business for Ben Jamil, 32, who until five years ago was selling furniture.

It all started, Jamil said in an interview, when a seaman who liked to pick up antiques and knick-knacks as he roamed the world came into Jamil's small New York shop with among other items for sale a Scandinavian cradle telephone, circa 1920.

Jamil said he bought the phone, gussied it up with gold plating, and took it to one New York store famous for its housewares. Were they interested in retailing such an item? "They were," said Jamil, "and in a few weeks I was in Denmark scouring all the local telephone companies for cradle telephones."

The Scandinavian type is fancier than the traditional American telephone. It has the rectangular base, but comes with a tall (six to eight inches) pronged cradle for holding the ear and mouth pieces.

The off-beat phones became such a hit that Jamil quit the furniture business, and went back to Scandinavia to round up more old phones.

After "we cleaned out Scandinavia", the problem was where to turn next. Japanese manufacturers were the answer. Today, Jamil said, his firm exports 12,000 to 15,000 antique phone reproductions per month from Japan, many of them sold to the U.S. consumer, some through his export company to other parts of the world.

The number of designs long since has expanded—there are about 300. That one Danish cradle type still, though, is the best seller. They range in price from $5.95 to custom-jobs in the $400 and $500 class. One customer paid $1,100 for a phone decorated with jade and semi-precious stones.

One of Jamil's early problems was overcoming telephone company resistance to installing phones which were not their own. But as the Wall Street Journal noted recently, a large phone company "is officially—if reluctantly—giving its approval to installation of any kind of phone a consumer wants . . ."

The giant phone company, the Journal explained, had contended that many "foreign" phones were substandard. But now, it will for a flat fee insert its own innards in the "shell" the customer supplies.

"Lynda Bird Johnson has a cradle phone," said Jamil. "Mrs. John F. Kennedy bought one, vintage 1885, for the White House when she was re-doing it. Zsa Zsa Gabor ordered phones covered in leopard skin for her home."

While I sat in his office he took a long distance call. It was a famous movie actress asking if he could cover a phone in iguana and get it to her by Christmas.

"I'll try," said Jamil. "It'll cost about $400."

"We'll cover them in leather, ostrich, whatever the customer asks if we can find it."

Through his shopping, Jamil also collected antique phones from all parts of the globe. On his desk sets a conventional telephone, and a tall, brass-decorated phone, with double ear pieces (so two could listen), made in France around 1880.

"It's a rare thing," said Jamil. "A girl named Marsha Pearl . . . she was an editor for a book publishing house . . . brought it in to see if I could put a dial on it."

"I tried to buy it and kept staving her off for three years," he laughed. "She's now Mrs. Ben Jamil, we have an infant daughter, and I finally have the phone."

Tips You Off

This is one of the nicest times to drive around England. When every country pub has a blazing coal fire, and snow falls in the evening like a Dickens Christmas card scene.

The tourist season is long gone. No problem getting rooms in country hotels. But you need warm pajamas, woolly slippers and a snug robe. Because baby, it's cold inside! They just don't heat those hotel rooms.

"Maybe you could suggest a place, outside of London, for the holidays."

I spent a Christmas at Tunbridge Wells—a couple of hours south of London. A very pleasant town with several very British resort hotels. Meaning eight kinds of marmelade, kippers and cod toast for breakfast. But a certain charm for all that. The Elizabethan Barn served good dinners and was cozy and comfortable.

Tunbridge Wells became popular a couple of hundred years ago when the London gentry discovered it had a well with curative water—chalybeate, which local people said tastes like iron. Queen Victoria and Albert stayed at the Calverley Hotel. Their suites are marked with their names.

An hour's drive through brown bracken countryside and small villages takes you to Battle. There's a huge monastery where King Harold was killed by a Norman archer in 1066. (It's haunted—naturally.) Buy hand-hammered iron work. It's done by local people to carry on a tradition. Caesar, after invading Britain, set them to work making Roman armor. Same process today for fireplace tongs and pokers.

"From your experience could you suggest basic equipment for driving to Mexico City?"

No special car equipment needed. Roads are good. Plenty of gas and garages. I carry a couple of Thermos bottles. One with coffee. Fill the other with purified water before leaving your hotel. One small flashlight—Mexican bathrooms are always one step up or one step down. Sprained ankles are the touris' hazard.

"For Europe, would you advise travellers' cheques? Letter of credit? Money belt?"

For convenience it's worth it (to me) to use travellers' cheques. They cash anywhere, any time. I'd be nervous carrying a lot of cash, even in a money belt. I did use a letter of credit—once. And it was a shambles. The problem of bank procedures, different languages in each city. Everytime I wanted a $100, it was a supreme effort.

"Do you have anything for us to read? We plan to go to England in summer . . ."

I have put together a sort of "personal file" on a number of countries that I know well. Not a complete guide by any means. But what happened to me.

If you want a "personal file" sheet for planning a trip, tell me (in care of the Daily Colonist) where you are headed. I may have it for Europe or Pacific countries. Send a stamped envelope addressed to yourself. I also have a background sheet on living abroad. And one on bicycling on a shoestring budget.

"Somebody told us we must watch out for scorpions in Mexico . . ."

We all hear this—it's part of the story. Actually, I've only seen four scorpions in my life. And two of them were in Texas. Joe Nash of the Mexico City News says the scorpion story is overdone. (It's his beat. He should know.) Still I shake out my shoes before putting them on. And use a flashlight at night walking barefoot on tile floors.

Smoke, Jets, Heels Injuring Parthenon

ATHENS (AP) — The Parthenon, symbol of Greece's glorious history, is sick. Cause—air pollution, airliners and women's high heels.

Archeologists carefully examining the 2,500-year-old monuments on the acropolis above Athens discovered the white pentelic marble of the Parthenon temple is affected by the growing industrialization around the Greek capital.

Another danger, a private study of Athens architects and engineers found, are the jet planes using Athens airport, eight miles away. Though it is illegal to fly near the acropolis, visitors claim they can feel slight vibrations from passing jet airliners.

The study also discovered women's heels are chipping away the Parthenon temple's flooring.

Magic Mark Reached

VANCOUVER (CP)—For the first time in any one year passenger totals passed the million mark at Vancouver International Airport with 1,036,391 counted to the end of October.

Midget City Makes Visitors Gullivers

MADURODAM, Holland (CNS)—This fascinating midget "city" has its own miniature shops, churches, harbor and radio station.

Without a doubt the smallest city in the world, it is an exact replica, in miniature, of a typical Dutch city.

Visitors feel like Gulliver among the Lilliputians as they walk through its medieval and modern streets, and see the rich wealth of detail in its creation.

The route you take through this novel Lilliputian city is two miles long. After dark the city is illuminated by 45,000 electric bulbs. The tiny ships in the harbor also switch on their navigation lights.

Life in this city-in-miniature is seldom still. Trains, trams and automobiles run, and there is even the Dutch traffic jam of cyclists at peak hours.

Ships sail, mills turn, cranes hoist their heavy loads, and the most modern of international trains run along the rails.

Madurodam even has its own miniature orchestra in the arts and sciences building.

This city has everything — museums, a castle, old town walls, a university, schools, theatres, cinemas, a radio station, a lunapark, and a zoo.

Canadian friends of the "little city" have sent over a miniature pine wood.

The original money for building the city was provided by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. L. Maduro, of Willemstad, Curacao, as a memorial to their only son, George, who died in a Nazi concentration camp at Dachau in 1945.

Railroad Jolts Japanese Airlines

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's super-express train is giving domestic airlines the blues.

Carrying 800 passengers, the train covers the 322 miles between Japan's two biggest cities, Tokyo and Osaka, in three hours, 10 minutes. The sleek, white and blue Hikari (Flash) trains dart out of Tokyo's Central Station 26 times a day for a run that averages 103 miles an hour.

The route used to be a gold mine for the airlines. Their jets hop the distance between airports in half an hour, but the over-all trip between downtown Tokyo and downtown Osaka takes about 2½ hours.

Said a passenger riding the Hikari on a business trip:

"The difference in time gained now is no longer worth the trouble of driving out to the airport, waiting around for take-off, taking the risk of flying, and then having to drive back through dense traffic into downtown Osaka."

One month after the Hikari started operating, Oct. 1, 1964, with a cautious, experimental five-hour schedule, Japan Air Lines suffered a 38 per cent drop in the number of passengers in its Tokyo-Osaka route.

By the end of last month, Japan Air Lines noted a further 28 per cent drop in traffic. The other airline flying the run, All-Japan Airlines, suffered a 25 per cent decline.

Garden Notes

Poor Man's Mister

By M. V. CHESNUT

In the taking and rooting of cuttings, professional nurserymen are using a modern method known as mist propagation. The base of the slip is treated with a hormone rooting powder and is inserted in a no-soil rooting medium — sand, vermiculite, perlite, or one of these materials mixed with peat moss. The containers with their cuttings are placed under a plastic bubble or tent-like affair, and special apparatus is used to squirt a fine mist of plain water into the air around the slips at regular intervals.

The very high humidity of the air under the bubble of plastic keeps the slips from wilting while forming their roots, while the open texture of the no-soil rooting medium permits excess water to drain away readily, with no waterlogging to inhibit rooting.

A professional mist propagator is an expensive piece of equipment, out of reach of the backyard gardener, but there is no reason why this high-humidity principle shouldn't be used in rooting bits and pieces of shrubs, trees and plants. The trick here is to seal up the pots of slips in plastic bags and keep them in full sunlight while the slips are rooting. There will be plenty of mist in the bag, as evidenced by the condensation on its sides.

For the sake of lightness, cost and convenience, I suggest plastic or waxed cardboard containers. These could be ice cream or cottage cheese tubs, cut-down milk bottle cartons, or what have you, but be sure to punch a few nail holes in the bottom for drainage.

Very coarse sand could be used at a pinch for the rooting medium, although I think vermiculite is ever so much better, perlite better still, and a 50-50 mixture of perlite and peat moss best of all. Pack the mixture fairly firmly into the cartons as roots won't form in a too-loose medium. Give it a good watering, then insert your slips as closely as you please as long as they aren't actually touching one another. Moisten the cut ends of the slips first and dip them in Rootone, Stim-Root, Ree-Root, or Seradix powder.

Place the pot of slips within a suitable sized plastic bag, then fold down the top of the bag, making several folds, and clipping the folded portion with paper clips or spring clothes pegs. Place in a sunny window, and that's all there is to it.

If you have a shortage of windowsill space, or if you are rooting a great number of cuttings — say, for the making of a new hedge — a good stunt is to stretch a strong cord or wire across the upper part of a sunny window and clip the plastic bags to this with spring clothes pegs. This will get your little "mist propagators" up out of the way and leave the sill free for its rightful occupants.

No watering is ever needed, for there is no way moisture can escape from the plastic bag, moisture evaporating from the original watering condenses on the side of the bag, runs down to the bottom, and is re-circulated. As no soil is used, there is no risk of soil-borne damping-off disease. Usually the bags can remain closed throughout the whole rooting process, until such time as new growth at the tips of the cuttings signals the success of the operation. On one occasion only, I had a spot of mildew start up on the leaves of my slips, and this was checked quickly by cutting a slit in the bag to admit air.

Under this system, Wandering Jew, coleus and mint slips will root in five days, geraniums and philodendron in ten, and cuttings from various shrubs in a matter of weeks instead of the usual year or more.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Claudia Spurns Marriage

NEW YORK (NANA)—"First thing in America they ask me, 'How is it you are not married'," said Claudia Cardinale who is 26 years old and has never taken the plunge.

"I will tell you why I am not married," confided the attractive Italian star. "It is because I don't need it. I don't want to get divorced one month later."

I have heard that Claudia's heart is in the safe keeping of an attractive Italian producer, but as she did not volunteer this information, I did not ask her. Instead we discussed some of the leading men with whom she has worked in the seven years of her career as a movie actress.

Anthony Quinn was her man in The Centurians, filmed this past summer on the south coast of Spain. Her description of Quinn: "He's a storm, a volcano." They were friendly, but Tony was busy, what with having Jolanda and his two sons by her with him on the set all the time.

French star Alain Delon also starred in The Centurians. "I have made three pictures with Alain," said Claudia. "The other two were The Leopard, and Rocco and his Brothers." This picture made Claudia an international star.

"Alain is considered in France—and everywhere I think—one of the most important actors," said Claudia, "Alain is very sure of himself. Women like him very much. He has the air of 'I don't care very much' and women like that. It is not easy to be a friend with Alain until he knows you. Tony Quinn is warm right away. But you have to get to know Alain. He is a big star and everyone is aware of this on the set. Outside it is different. He is a pal. But inside, while he is very nice, he is distant. We didn't become friends in The Leopard but now we are. I know his wife, his child."

Burt Lancaster has made two pictures with Claudia —The Leopard, and currently, The Professionals. "He knows so much about Italy it's amazing. He even speaks Italian. He is very businesslike when he is working," says Claudia. "I did not get to know him at all during The Leopard. He is much easier now. I am enjoying this picture. I am the only woman among so many men, Burt, Lee Marvin, Robert Ryan, Jack Palance, Ralph Bellamy, Woody Strode."

Marcello Mastroianni. "I did my first important movie with him, The Magnificent Antonio, I must say he's very clever with the women. He's doing many things, but nobody knows. He doesn't like Brigitte Bardot. She's not his type. She's too young-looking. His fame happened so suddenly. He became in life exactly as he was in Divorce Italian Style. And the same in 8-½, like Fellini." Claudia was also in this film.

As you can see, the Italian beauty has worked with many top male stars. But she has not yet starred with the man who discovered her—Omar Sharif. When she was 16 and he was a big star in Egypt, he picked her for a bit role from a line-up of Tunisian girls. (She was born in Africa.) "We may work together this year, in Italy or France. I like Omar very much. With the women, he is very gallant."

CLAUDIA CARDINALE during filming in Brazil

"Five films I have made this year. I don't know why I work so hard. Perhaps I was so interested in the films. Sandra, with Visconti, won the Venice film festival. Then I did Blindfold in Hollywood. My first impression of Hollywood was bad. I wasn't happy at all. I was living in a hotel, and there was no noise at all. I'm used to noise. But when I had a house and have some friends, then I am happy." Before The Professionals, Claudia starred in A Rose for Everyone in Rio. "I was happy. I was surrounded again by seven men."

Always surrounded by men, but . . .

ERMA BOMBECK Deplores Hairy Trend

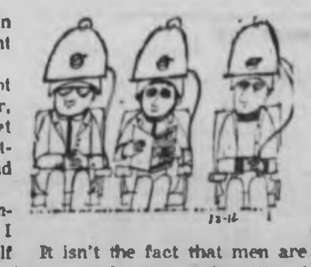
Boys Will Be Girls

Last summer I predicted in my column that long hair for men and boys was on its way out.

I got my information directly from a hysterical barber who maintained this theory even after he sold his shop and went into the used car business.

Now I must report that not only is their hair getting longer, but they're having it styled, set with special hair stiffener, heat-treated under hair dryers and sprayed with a scent of gin!

In short, girls, men are integrating our beauty shops. I wouldn't have believed it myself had I not seen a picture in a newspaper of three men relaxing under beauty capes and hair dryers and looking for the world like three women at the end of a bad week.



It isn't the fact that men are going to be bettered coiffured that bothers me. Or the fact that, when I lean over to the next dryer to complain about my husband, it IS my husband.

It isn't even the waste of all that precious gin being rubbed into the scalp. It's just that I hate to see the two-sex party system die out. It's always been such a happy arrangement . . . the male and the female.

- Men keep short hair. Women will grow theirs longer. (Just for instant sex identification.)
- Men swear off ruffled evening shirts and scanty sandals. Women will give up wearing slacks, jeans and boots up to their knees.
- Men relinquish cigarette holders. Women swear off pipes and cigars. (We'll even toss in blowing cigarette smoke through the nostrils.)
- Men give up floral after-shave lotions. Women give up leather jackets and shapeless sweat shirts.
- Men stay out of kitchens. Women stop decorating windows of Volkswagens with organdy curtains.
- Men keep out of beauty shops and tea rooms. Women consider pool rooms out of bounds.

It won't solve the problem entirely, but it's a start toward separating the men from the women.

I FEEL MY CALORIE-CONSCIOUS WILL POWER WEAKENING ALREADY!—YOU MUST HAVE A JEWEL IN YOUR KITCHEN!
I DO KEEP A VERY FINE CHEF, LORI!—BUT TONIGHT I HAD A CATERER SEND FOOD IN!—SO WE COULD ENJOY SOME PRIVACY!

Opening lead: Club six

The brilliant bluffs we've described this week were all pulled after dummy was exposed and the would-be deceiver had calculated that legitimate play could not win. Just occasionally, however, a deal comes along where an imaginative defender can "see" the hidden hands and figure that bluff is needed—even before he makes the opening lead. A spectacularly successful example of this type bluff was pulled by internationalist Lee Hazen.

Hazen, a top bridge performer as well as New York City attorney, held the West cards in a world championship practice match. The type player who habitually makes bluff opening leads usually loses tricks thereby, but Hazen's decision to make a deceptive lead in this case was based on an ice-cold appraisal of the bidding.

Hazen figured that his spade holding was probably good for a trick, but the club king seemed doomed. The Blackwood sequence suggested that South had kept out of a grand slam only because the vital club king was missing—and Hazen knew that it was well-placed for declarer. On normal play, therefore, declarer would eventually fall back on the winning club finesse to recoup the trick that the unlucky spade break would cost.

The best chance to deflect declarer from the winning play was to force a decision on him before he found out abtu the trump situation. Hazen therefore opened the club six. From declarer's viewpoint, the chance of losing a trump trick was slim; it was three times as likely that West had a singleton club and that losing the finesse would also cost a club ruff. So South very reasonably put the club ace on the opening lead and put the slam on the skids.

Margaret Laurence

Novels' Strength Drawn From Interest in People

By CAROL KENNEDY

PENN, England (CP)—Margaret Laurence looked out at the cosy wooded Buckinghamshire countryside, so far removed in scale and spirit from the Manitoba prairies where she grew up, and talked of her writing and the influences that shaped it.

Behind her, ranged on two shelves, gleamed the bindings of different editions of the four books that in five years have established this dark-haired, 39-year-old mother of two as a Canadian writer of rare promise and productivity.

As she spoke—hesitantly at first, as if shy of expressing beliefs that might sound pretentious in words—it became clear that the strength of her novels springs from a deep, compassionate interest in people as individuals.

"If I believe anything, it's in the unique quality of human life, and it has to be observed in terms of one by one. I don't think there is such a thing as 'the masses.'"

What critics have called her "rare perception of life" has distinguished all her work—her widely-praised first novel, This Side Jordan, a collection of West African short stories entitled The Tomorrow-Tamer, her Somaliland travel book The Prophet's Camel Bell and above all her 1964 novel The Stone Angel. This was her first novel with a Canadian setting and the book that has given her most satisfaction.

RAVE RECEPTION

A powerful tale of an authoritarian 90-year-old woman reliving her past in a small Canadian prairie community as death approaches, it won a rave reception from critics on both sides of the Atlantic. It also triumphantly proved to the former Margaret Wemyss of Neepawa, Man., that she could write convincingly about her homeland and her own people.

She had already won wide acclaim for her sensitive understanding of the African temperament in the stories she wrote while living in Ghana and Somaliland with her civil engineer husband—a gift she describes as "mostly an intuitive thing."

"I think I went about as far as I could in getting under the skin of the African characters, if indeed I did. Ultimately one's own people are what one knows best, or should."

BOOK JUST FINISHED

Having made this breakthrough, her next novels will explore Canadian themes further. The morning of our interview in her rambling, grey stucco home she had just sent off her latest manuscript, a short novel of 60,000 words, to her London publisher.

The fruit of eight months' work, it has a Canadian prairie setting similar to that of "The Stone Angel." Like the earlier book, it explores one main character in depth, and the plot again will be dominated by the theme that runs like a strong thread through all Margaret Laurence's fiction—the struggle of the individual to break free from the destructive influences of his or her past, whether religious, family or environmental.

NATURE OF FREEDOM

"I guess I'm obsessed with the nature of freedom," she said thoughtfully. Then, with a flash of amusement: "That sounds very pretentious, doesn't it?"

Margaret Laurence has none of the somewhat grandiose concepts of a novelist's art that some authors produce for interviews. She speaks with blunt honesty.

"Someone — I think it was Mordecai Richler — said the only responsibility of the novelist is that he shouldn't bore the reader. I agree with that.

"What I really care about as a novelist is whether the character comes across as a convincing, paradoxical human being."

Her novels spring initially from characters rather than abstract ideas. She usually has the bare bones of the plot in mind when she starts to write, though this can change as the characters assume a life of their own.

Her daily writing routine starts immediately after David, 10, and Jocelyn, 13 go to school. She writes in longhand in scribblers, "anywhere where it's warm," often at the kitchen table.

ACT OF FAITH

She finds it hard to get started, but once away writes "compulsively," and is always reluctant to stop.

"I don't want to sound mystical about this, but writing a novel is, well, an act of faith in oneself . . . you can only write what is in you to begin with. Either it's there or it isn't."

She rarely reads over her previous work until the completed novel is ready for redrafting—and usually cutting—on the typewriter.

TOO MUCH TALK

Speaking of Canadian writing, Mrs. Laurence said she was encouraged by the new horizons opening up, with Canadian publishers becoming "more venturesome" and a gradual withering-away of self-consciously Canadian epics—"what I call the Maple Leaf Forever school."

"What really upsets me about Canada is all this sitting around in conferences worrying whether we have a culture or a literature—we're not going to get either by talking about it."

She started writing at the age of eight and her mother, a school teacher, was her first critic. "She never laughed, which must have been quite a strain."

After graduating from the University of Manitoba in 1947 she reported and reviewed books for the short-lived co-operative paper the Winnipeg Citizen. She still does occasional free-lance work for British publications.

Her first published story, The Drummer of all the world, based on her West African experiences, appeared in Queen's Quarterly in 1956 and was later included in The Tomorrow-Tamer.

NOW PESSIMISTIC

This Side Jordan, which won a $1,000 award for the best first novel by a Canadian and was a Book Society Recommendation in England, was the sympathetic story of Nathaniel Amegbe, a Ghanaian school teacher striving to come to terms with his rejected tribal past, set against the finely-observed backdrop of a black-and-white society in ferment on the eve of national independence.

Looking back, Mrs. Laurence said she had been a "liberal humanist" then, believing all problems could be solved by people of good faith.

"As I grow older I'm becoming more pessimistic. People seem less life-oriented. I'm coming to believe we may very well blow ourselves up one day."

Sockeye Run Predicted

BELLINGHAM (AP) — The International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission has forecast a sockeye run of 3,000,000 fish next year and estimated U.S. and Canadian fishermen would catch between 700,000 and 800,000 for each nation.

The prediction matched the run for this season, which had been predicted accurately last year. The U.S. catch was 1,026,000 sockeye; Canadians caught 1,039,000.

Hairy Problem Of Integration Faces Forces

By BOB PETHICK

Integration of the armed forces may be a great thing from the defence minister's point of view but for the rank and file it presents problems.

According to an item in the combined forces magazine Sentinel, one of the main problems is creating one set of regulations to govern three forces—and that isn't easy.

One of the big problems was a hairy one but the regulations committee, with elaborate passing work, managed to dump the problem into the chief of staff's lap.

SNEAKY RULING

In the navy, beards are permitted but moustaches are not, while in the army and air force moustaches are on the approved list and beards aren't.

So the sneaky ruling reads "wearing of beards and moustaches shall be subject to any restrictions ordered by the Chief of Defence staff"—This makes the chief a sort o' whisker watcher.

Another regulation to sadden the hearts of soldiers and airmen is they won't receive rum allowance the way the navy does unless they serve at sea, which is unlikely in practically all cases.

But the navy can breath a sigh of relief because at least the committee were sports enough to continue the long-standing rum ration practice.

Hindus Fear China

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

According to ancient mythology, the Himalayan mountains are the home of Lord Shiva, one of the gods in the Hindu trinity. There are many famous Hindu temples all along the 2,500-mile frontier between India and China.

Hindu monks have thought up a novel way to protest Peking's presence in the Himalayas and symbolize India's determination to resist further aggression.

SEVEN MONKS

A group of seven monks propose to stay on in the 11,000-foot-high Badrinath temple throughout the winter. This will pose endurance problems of the first magnitude. The vigil-keepers have ignored warnings of heavy snowfalls, avalanches and marauding Himalayan bears.

Swami Anand, 65-year-old leader of the group, said: "Come what may, we will not come down from Badrinath before the end of next April."

HOLY LAND

"China must realize that she must leave the Himalayas, every inch of which is sacred Hindu territory," he said, claiming that according to ancient scriptures the whole of Tibet was once Hindu country.

China has dug-in positions less than 40 miles from Badrinath. The Indians have also heavily fortified the passes in the area.

HARD TO CRACK

Swami Anand said that three years ago a Peking radio broadcast claimed that Badrinath fell within Chinese jurisdiction.

"The reds want to demoralize us," he said. "We must show that the Hindu spirit is hard to crack."

The Indian government recently has protested several times to Peking over Chinese incursions over the Indian border.

Dickens of Sign

He's Had Bellyful Of Christmas, Commercialism

TORONTO (CP)—The flashing colored lights outside John Tames's home here Thursday were Christmassy — but their message—Humbug—wasn't.

"I've had a bellyful of Christmas commercialism. Every year I'm pressured into buying $150 worth of gifts. Frankly, there's as much Christianity and brotherhood in Christmas as there is in a retailer's fire sale," he said.

He said it's in memory of Scrooge, the miser in Charles Dickens's novel A Christmas Carol, terming the sign his Big Protest.

The father of two girls added: "Nobody has the guts to protest. It's like motherhood: You can't rock the boat.

"Even the churches have a vested interest. They don't want to rock the boat. What's happened to all the celebration for Christ's birthday?"

Hence the flashing sign in a pleasant neighborhood of central Toronto.

Lengthy Dispute Now Over

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—The Kohler company and the United Auto Workers Union announced Friday they have reached a final agreement settling their 11½-year dispute.

Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the UAW, told a press conference that the firm will pay $3,000,000 in back wages and $1,500,000 to reinstate pensions.

Vehicle Hits House

A car travelled 90 feet before smashing into a house at Shelbourne and McRae, in a spectacular traffic accident at 11:25 p.m. Thursday.

About $500 damage was done to the house at 3296 Shelbourne owned by Mrs. Esther Brownlee.

A car driven by Sydney Worboys, 1610 Midgard, was in collision with another driven by Lewis Rossner, 2945 Austin.

Police said Mr. Worboys' car then travelled 90 feet to the house. Allison Worboys, of the same address, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital for abrasions to both knees.

Bank's Loss Hidden

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Ian Smith's government has ordered the Rhodesian Reserve Bank to stop publishing its weekly statement of assets and liabilities, showing the value of foreign assets.

The latest figures for the week ending Dec. 3 should have been published Thursday.

However, a statement issued today by the bank's newly-appointed chief cashier, C. H. Roberts, said the bank had been directed to stop publishing them under the emergency regulations.

The last weekly statement, published Dec. 9, showed gold and foreign assets Nov. 26 at £21,630,000 ($64,800,000)—a drop of about £7,000,000 ($21,000,000) or 25 per cent since the end of September.

The financial correspondent of the Rhodesia Herald wrote Friday that the drop in the reserves was attributable partly to efforts by the commercial banks to repay external loans and partly by two movements in anticipation of the unilateral declaration of independence—an import buildup and the switching of non-resident funds where possible to London from Salisbury.

The Big Shuffle

Cabinet newcomers Marchand, Turner, Winters, Cote, Greene

He appointed five new members to fill vacancies created by electoral defeats and resignations and shuffled the duties of eight ministers.

Newcomers to the cabinet are:

- Robert H. Winters, a former Liberal cabinet minister back in politics after an eight-year absence, who will take over the big trade portfolio early in 1966.
- Jean Marchand, 47, the former Quebec labor leader, who takes over as immigration minister.
- J. J. Greene, 45, from Renfrew South, moving into agriculture.
- Jean-Pierre Cote, 39, from Longueuil, becoming post-master-general.
- John Turner, 36, Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George, who will be a minister without portfolio.

Mr. Pearson, speaking at a press conference, said he also was proposing a far-reaching reorganization of the cabinet structure designed to adapt government machinery to new conditions and changing needs.

Shifts Run Wide, Deep

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet and departmental shuffle Friday will bring about the biggest federal administrative reorganization in peacetime history.

Thousands of civil servants will be shifted to new departments and there will be a wholesale change in ministerial responsibilities.

'CHANGING NEEDS'

The prime minister said the changes "are designed to adapt the machinery of government to new conditions and changing needs."

One of the biggest changes will be involved in the proposed new manpower department. It will take over the sections of the labor department dealing with manpower placement and employment services, technical and vocational training and civilian rehabilitation. It also will take over the immigration branch of the department of citizenship and immigration.

DUTIES INCREASE

In the field of justice, the changes also will be extensive. The relatively light duties of solicitor-general will become far heavier with the transfer from justice of the responsibility for the RCMP, the penitentiaries service and the National Parole Board.

The justice department and the secretary of state department will lose some of their responsibilities, said Mr. Pearson, when additional duties are assigned to "a new and separate minister."

Douglas Raps Changes:

Pearson Favors Right-Wingers

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson has disappointed French Canada and doomed the rest of the nation to economic drifting, former Conservative cabinet minister Alvin Hamilton charged last night.

New Democrat Leader Tommy Douglas said Mr. Pearson has strengthened the "right wing element" of the cabinet.

He said the appointment of Mitchell Sharp as finance minister and Robert Winters as trade and commerce minister will "only serve to hasten American control of the Canadian economy."

He described Mr. Sharp and Mr. Winters as "continentalists" as opposed to former finance minister Walter Gordon whom he said was a "nationalist."

Mr. Douglas welcomed the establishment of the manpower department, as did Mr. Hamilton. Both said it should have been done long ago.

MAJOR POST

Mr. Hamilton said both new portfolios (manpower and resources and energy) were badly needed, but neither will satisfy the demands of the Quebec intelligentsia which had hoped that a French Canadian would receive a major economic post.

"The two top economic portfolios have gone to the drifters, the laissez faire economists. If these two men follow their records we'll be in for a policy of drift.

"I challenge Mr. Sharp to state as soon as possible whether or not he will follow the policies of Mr. Gordon," he said.

BACKED AWAY

"Mr. Pearson was unable to find a Quebec lieutenant he trusts sufficiently to gave an economic post," he added.

He said the prime minister had backed away "from the golden opportunity he had" to pick the best men for the best jobs irrespective of the regions they represented.

NO DECISION

"Mr. Sauve has been written off by Mr. Pearson. I would predict he won't be in the cabinet long.

"By not promoting him or putting him out entirely Mr. Pearson leaves him neither guilty nor not guilty," Mr. Hamilton said.

Creditiste leader Real Caouette was kinder to the prime minister, stating the new cabinet "has satisfied the needs of Quebec."

He said his party would fight to unseat Mr. Sauve if it could establish that all allegations against him are true.

They're Home Today

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 7 space champions boned up on tricky manoeuvres vital to a safe return to earth, then settled down for a long night's rest before a fiery homecoming today from man's longest space voyage.

Confident their tiny spacecraft's pesky electrical system will not fail, U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr. streaked into the 14th day of tracking network.

With 5,000,000 miles of space travel behind them, the two astronauts came down the home stretch feeling good and jovial.

"We're all quite impressed with how good you guys sound today," mission control advised them.

"We feel a lot better. . . ." Borman answered.

Dr. Charles Berry, the flight's medical director, said that from medical data relayed from the spacecraft to ground Borman and Lovell seemed in good health.

And, Berry said he felt that even though neither man has taken a step since climbing into the small spacecraft Dec. 4, They would be able to walk once on deck of the recovery ship.

Borman, the command pilot, is to fire his retro-rockets at 8:28 a.m. EST as the spacecraft heads over the Pacific on the 206th trip around the world. Earth's gravity will then grip the speeding craft for its splashdown 37 minutes later.

The pilots spent much of the day tidying up the craft, stowing equipment and other things used for the last two weeks.

Borman and Lovell took the day off at mid - afternoon and plan to be up and ready early for the end of their voyage.

"See you in the morning," Borman said before signing off for the day.

How the record — breaking astronauts look, feel and act after man's longest exposure to the strange world of space can provide the answer to a critical question: Can man live and work during great periods of time in the weightless environment?

The U.S. space agency released some of the movies and still pictures taken of the dramatic meeting by Gemini 6 pilots Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford.

The color movies depict the apparent ease with which the two black-and-white ships flew gracefully through space six to 10 feet from each other at 17,500 miles an hour.

I Am Not Perfect

PARIS (CP) — Frenchmen gathered around television and radio sets Friday night to hear the last bid for support from President de Gaulle and left wing opponent Francois Mitterrand before Sunday's vote for the French presidency.

Both candidates were at their persuasive best.

"Here I am such as I am," the 75-year-old de Gaulle said.

"I do not say I am perfect and that I am not my age. I in no way claim to know everything or to be able to do everything . . . but history has willed that together with the French people I have succeeded in certain undertakings . . ."

Mitterrand, 49-year-old Socialist and veteran politician, also told the voters the choice is clear. For him it was a decision between the "personal power" exercised for the last seven years by de Gaulle and "republican regime" of all citizens.

Troop Pullout Dropped

U.S. GLIMPSES HANOI OFFER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has received through intermediaries a conditional offer from President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam to enter into negotiations for a peaceful settlement of the Vietnamese war.

Two conditions laid down by Ho now appear to U.S. officials here to be unacceptable. State Secretary Dean Rusk, at Johnson's direction, is seeking clarification.

The intermediaries also reported that Hanoi dropped its condition that the U.S. must get out of Viet Nam before negotiations can begin.

The White House said late Friday it has had no indication that North Viet Nam "is ready to conduct unconditional discussions."

Letters Exchanged

An exchange of letters involving Rusk and the Italian foreign minister, Amintore Fanfani, also president of the United Nations General Assembly, was released by the state department Friday.

Fanfani's letter, addressed to Johnson, reported the conditional peace offer which specified that a ceasefire would have to precede negotiations and appeared to require that the U.S. also would have to accept in advance Communist settlement terms as the basis for negotiations.

Shortly after the state department made the disclosure, Johnson, at a Christmas tree lighting ceremony, said: "We declare once more our desire to discuss an honorable peace in Viet Nam." "We know that nothing is to be gained by further delay in talking."

The White House comment and Rusk's letter to Fanfani made clear that United States leaders are skeptical of the Hanoi offer. But officials said they will make every effort to arrive at an acceptable arrangement for negotiation.

In his letter dated Nov. 20, Fanfani reported that on Nov. 11 two Italians had met in Hanoi with President Ho and North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, and had been told that the North Vietnamese leaders strongly desired a peaceful solution to the war in Viet Nam.

Fanfani then reported a summary of the conditions and said he had been advised in writing by the intermediaries that "the government in Hanoi is prepared to initiate negotiations without first requiring actual withdrawal of the American troops" from South Viet Nam.

Four Points

Ho was quoted in Fanfani's report as saying "I am prepared to go anywhere; to meet anyone."

The advance Communist settlement terms, the so - called "four points," were laid down in March by the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong. In them, the Front demanded the United States withdraw all troops, material and bases from South Viet Nam; cancel its military alliance with Saigon; cease "all acts of war" against North Viet Nam; and then settle the dispute "in accordance with the program (of the Viet Cong) without any foreign interference.

Ho said that it would be necessary to have in advance "a declaration according to which the Geneva Agreements of 1954 will be taken as the basis for the negotiation."

The Geneva Agreements established the states of Viet Nam Laos and Cambodia in former French Indochina. They specified that those states were to be independent and free of foreign alliances.

A provision for the unification of North and South Viet Nam never was fulfilled.

Rhodesia

Britain Cuts Oil Flow

LONDON (CP)—Britain imposed an oil embargo on the breakaway colony of Rhodesia Friday, after long deliberation.

It was the harshest measure yet against the white-minority regime of Ian Smith, which unilaterally declared itself independent Nov. 11. The U.S. was expected to join shortly in the crippling embargo. Rhodesia, which imports its oil, uses about 280,000 tons a year.

The Queen signed the embargo order at a special Privy Council in Buckingham Palace, attended by top ministers except Prime Minister Wilson, who was conferring with President Johnson in Washington.

The order establishes stiff fines and prison sentences for any British national supplying or helping to supply oil to Rhodesia. Britain also set up an RAF airlift to keep oil moving to copper-producing, landlocked Zambia, which has been getting its oil from neighboring Rhodesia. The airlift has already begun.

'Right Step' Say Africans

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — The news that Britain has imposed an oil embargo against Rhodesia was welcomed by African delegates here as a step in the right direction.

Other reaction was less than whole - hearted, however. A diplomat, regarded as one of Britain's severest critics here, said: "It is not all that we want, but it is something."

0 Fund's Grand Turkey Shoot

They're Gunning for Birds Today

Today is the day for scattergunners to shoulder their pieces and head for the Victoria Gun Club grounds on Metchosin Road at Albert Head.

The club has invited the public to participate in its annual turkey shoot for The Daily Colonist 500 Fund.

The shoot starts at 10 a.m. today and Sunday and each day ends when the last shooter leaves.

The club has provided 350 turkeys and 50 hams as prizes for the best shots in five classes.

There are classes for everyone from the expert to the gunshy. Even those who don't own their own shotguns can participate—the club will provide the weapons.

Only clay pigeons get the blast.

Last year the club raised $300 for the fund, now in its ninth year. Every year the 500 poorest families in Greater Victoria receive from the fund an even share of the total, just before Christmas, to spend as they please.

Nanaimo Woman Gets $50,000

Housekeeper-Companion Receives Belated Gifts

TORONTO (CP)—A 73-year-old woman now living at Nanaimo Friday was awarded about $50,000 in securities and cash from the $484,000 estate of her former employer who died here in 1960.

Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court ruled that a trust company official exercised undue influence on Mrs. Ethel Margaret English six years ago when she surrendered to the Royal Trust Co. the gifts Lester Everett Weaver had given her on her retirement as his housekeeper.

Mrs. English was "instrumental in Mr. Weaver's spending the last nine years of his life in relative happiness, peace and comfort," said Mr. Justice Landreville's written judgment.

The judge found that a natural bond of attachment had formed between Mrs. English, a widow, and Mr. Weaver, a widower. The attachment "was not planned or designed by her; it was the consequence of her natural personality."

BOUGHT STOCKS

Mr. Weaver at first bought penny stocks for Mrs. English and eventually created a $40,000 estate for her retirement, Mr. Justice Landreville said.

Mrs. English received less than 10 per cent of Mr. Weaver's estate while the assets of it went to the Weaver family. The judge also noted that both sons—Judge Everett Lane Weaver of York County court here and William Erskine Weaver, an investment dealer—already were men of means before their father died at the age of 87.

Viet Cong Way Stations

Giant B-52s Pound Laos Route On Secret Raids

SAIGON (UPI) — Giant B-52 bombers from Guam have struck at improved communist infiltration facilities in neighboring and nominally neutral Laos, it was learned early Saturday. The first in a series of secret raids was conducted more than a week ago.

The raids came against such military targets as recently constructed all-weather supply routes and way stations for Communist Vietnamese military units infiltrating through Laos to aid the Viet Cong rebels in the south.

Under an agreement between the United States and Laotian neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma, smaller American air force and navy planes have been attacking communist positions in the southern Laotian panhandle since early this year.

HUSTLED SOUTH

The decision to throw America's mightiest bombers into the attacks was prompted by a stepped-up use of the Laotian corridor by the communists.

Sources said earlier the North Vietnamese have improved the infiltration network to a point where as many as 4,500 men and 2,500 tons of supplies could be hustled south each month.

American military officials became especially concerned when they noted that the North Vietnamese had moved heavy road-building and earth-moving equipment into areas of Laos bordering Viet Nam's Kontum and Quang Nam provinces where all-weather infiltration roads were being constructed.

Rusk's Plea Leaves NATO Cold

PARIS (UPI)—NATO support for the U.S. in Viet Nam—including troops and tanks—would be welcomed, American officials said Friday. "We are open to any offers," they said.

An appeal to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council by Secretary of State Dean Rusk Tuesday covered every kind of aid, the officials said.

Any tangible support, from shipments of ambulances and hospital supplies to outright military assistance of the kind given during the Korean War, would be welcomed, they said.

The sources said, however, that the first NATO reaction to Rusk's plea was "predictable"—not too encouraging.

As one U.S. official put it.

"There certainly was no frenzy of applause."

KARACHI (Reuters) — Rescuers have begun the mammoth task of caring for and feeding survivors of the cyclone that roared through East Pakistan for three hours Thursday and claimed at least 17,000 lives.

First official reports put the estimated deaths as high as 25,000 but press accounts Friday suggested the lower figure might be more accurate.

Two Suspended as Aged Beaten

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Two orderlies at the Victoria County Home for the Aged here have been suspended following allegations residents were brutally beaten.

The suspensions were announced Friday night after a meeting between Edward Hill of the county solicitor's office and Byron Rogers, chairman of the board that administers the home in this town 35 miles northeast of Peterborough.

After hearing the charges, the board asked County Judge H. E. Richardson to conduct a judicial inquiry.

Mr. Growden said he saw orderlies bump one man's head against a wall and knock down another with a punch to the neck. He also said a broom handle was broken across the neck of one resident.

The latest incident occurred Dec. 2 when an orderly, whose breath smelled of alcohol, punched an 82-year-old man in the head, he said.

Mr. Growden said he reported two of the incidents to Superintendent Laughie Keeler.

Mr. Keeler said Friday he was not told about the alleged beatings and called Mr. Growden's charges "unjust,"buto eloe mw charges "unjust," but welcomed the inquiry.

Regional College

High Fees Face Outsiders

NANAIMO — Students from school districts that vote themselves out of the regional college will face higher tuition fees, according to Dr. Roy MacMillan.

February or March nine school districts north of the Malahat vote on the college.

A 50 per cent majority is needed for the plan to pass, with a money referendum to be presented at a later date.

Dr. MacMillan, a Nanaimo school trustee, said Penticton is already experiencing difficulty because it originally opted out of a regional college in the Okanagan, but now wants to become part of it.

The only way Dr. MacMillan can see a district getting back into the college region, would be by paying a share of the original capital cost.

This money would then be set aside for future expansion.

The plebiscite will be held in each of the districts taking part, and if three or four were to turn it down, he saw no reason why the remaining districts couldn't go ahead with the project, providing they could bear the construction costs.

Dr. MacMillan admitted that if Nanaimo voted the college down, it would be a crippling blow.

He believed the idea will be successful in all the participating districts, because they have received it with such enthusiasm.

Once the plebiscite is passed the present co-ordinating commitee will be disbanded and a regional college council will be formed.

This will be an autonomous body, much like a school board.

Packed Hall Hears Concert

CAMPBELL RIVER — A packed hall of 800 listeners heard the second annual Christmas festival Campbell River Sings this week.

There were selections by choirs from the United Church and St. Peter's Anglican.

Fall Kills Old Man

DUNCAN — A coroner's jury decided, 86-year-old Orlando Murray Brown of Cowichan Bay died of multiple external injuries caused from a fall from a Maple tree, Aug. 10.

Coroner was Dr. R. R. Wilson.

A report was given by Nanaimo pathologist Stanley M. Grant.

Addition to the Christmas lighting scene is the Seacrest high-rise. Last Christmas the building was still dark, and under construction. Now its 16 storeys are lit for the season.—(Agnes Flett)

Students Go Home

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—There was an exodus from the Shawnigan Lake - Mill Bay area of several hundred school students Thursday, as all five independent schools broke up for the Christmas holidays.

Shawnigan Lake Boys' School, Strathcona Lodge and Cliffside Preparatory School, as well as Brentwood College and the new Cedar Lodge School at Mill Bay, saw pupils off to their homes in many parts of Canada, U.S. and Mexico.

They will return for the spring term Jan. 11.

Twin Cities

Blitz Brings Healthy Fund

PORT ALBERNI—Young and old, businessmen and bush workers, men and women, scurried about the valley recently for the annual Bingo Blitz in aid of CJAV's Senior Citizens' Fund.

The fund has become an institution in the valley, with contributions flowing in, in many forms, from service clubs, neighborhood groups and the public. And the biggest night of all is the annual radio bingo, with cards sold all over the valley.

This year the members of Teen Town, service clubs, cab drivers, and dozens of just plain citizens got in the act, and sold $1,010 worth of cards in one night.

Final tally showed $1,506 raised by the radio game, a significant addition to the more than $50,000 that has been raised and distributed over the years by the management and staff of the valley's radio station, with the blessing and co-operation of valley residents.

Cheques from the fund are prepared and distributed in time for recipients to use and enjoy them before Christmas.

Stills Stilled

Alfonso Reginato, 49, 630 Kennedy Street, was fined $150 here Friday after RCMP found 45 gallons of grape mash, a large still, and two gallons of illicit spirits in his basement.

Sharanowski's basement contained a still, two barrels of mash and three gallons of spirits.

Both men maintained they were distilling for their own consumption over the festive season.

Livingstone in Nanaimo

'We Should Fight in Asia'

NANAIMO—Sir Philip Livingstone told Jaycees Canadian forces should be fighting alongside the United States forces in Viet Nam.

Sir Philip, a retired air marshal in the Royal Air Force, was a British observer during the Berlin airlift in 1948, and he pointed out Canada did not participate in this action either.

"I was saddened to see Canada did not supply men then, and I save carried this thought into the present Viet Nam conflict."

He defended U.S. policy in south-east Asia, but said he believed nuclear arms were not the answer to aggression in that part of the world.

He turned to medicare, and claimed $450,000,000 was an unrealistic cost estimate, $1,000,000,000 would be a truer figure.

Sir Philip now lives on Salt Spring Island. He was born in Duncan in 1893, but educated in the United Kingdom.

Pensioners Rejoice

PORT ALBERNI — Hats, holly and close harmony provided by an old fashioned barber shop quartet set the theme for the Old Age Pensioners banquet Thursday night in Port Alberni.

Close to 140 guests gathered in Port Legion Hall to enjoy the lavish turkey dinner, to sing carols by candlelight, and enjoy the entertainment provided through the efforts of the Eagles Ladies Auxiliary, guided by singer Margaret Hepner.

Honored during the evening was Mrs. Ann Damery, president of the local association who received a life membership in the OAP association from the hands of Dunc Russel, the Valley's popular recreation director, who is honorary president of the group.

One of the star performers, also honored for her services was Mrs. Florence Cameron, now well into her eighties, who has acted as pianist for the group since its inception, and whose absences said the president "could be counted on one hand."

Young pupils of the Roberta School of Music and six children of members of the Eagles Lodge danced and sang their way into the senior citizens hearts, as did the barbershop quartet under the direction of department store manager Jim Skinner.

Court Upholds Bylaw for Marina

B.C. Supreme Court has upheld a rezoning bylaw which will permit a 100-boat marina and $170,000 mobile trailer unit to be built at Maple Bay.

Two residents of the area, Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Wilson of Duncan, had asked the court to quash the bylaw, claiming they and other Maple Bay residents were not given the opportunity of voicing their objections at a public hearing.

The hearing was held in Duncan, Sept 1, the North Cowichan district council approving the bylaw the same day.

Dr. Wilson, who had been instrumental in having a petition sent to council, was present at the hearing but said he understood it was being adjourned until a future date for further submissions.

He had felt the development would adversely affect properties and spoil the amenities of the Maple Bay area.

Council said the Wilsons were represeted by councel at the hearing and although when it was asked whether anyone else wished to speak, Dr. Wilson gave no indication he wished to personally do so.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton ruled the public hearing was conducted in a proper manner and the bylaw should stand.

He Paints with Expression

Artist Robert Aller of Port Alberni is in Victoria to do paintings based on the faces on old Indian totems, now at the provincial museum.

Mr. Aller studies the face on the old totem, then paints not just what he sees, but the expression he feels originally resided in the carving.

He gives free classes in art to Indian children in the Alberni Valley, but also teaches white children.

Mr. Aller has had travelling exhibitions in Manitoba and B.C., and his work was subject of a television film on CBC. This winter his classes are a feature at the Indian Residential School in the Albernis.

His students' work will be shown in an exhibition at UBC in March, and he will give a talk on the children's painting to UBC anthropology students.

Municipalities Can Sponsor Program

Cheap Homes for Poor Now 'Realistic'

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — "If things hadn't been held up by that unnecessary election, plans were in hand to interest this area in low-rental housing," MP Tom Barnett said Friday.

"Recent amendments to the National Housing Act have moved in the direction of making it more realistic for municipalities to participate in housing projects," Mr. Barnett explained.

Mr. Barnett's comments followed statements from social welfare director Sidney Abma in Port Alberni that low-rental housing for welfare recipients and low-income families is almost non-existent in this area, and that dozens of families are occupying substandard housing, despite the handsome homes and apartment houses springing up all over the Twin Cities.

NEVER AIRBORNE

"The old provisions of the housing act never really got off the ground. They called for local authorities to assume more responsibility than they could be expected to undertake.

"Now, under the Federal-Provincial Housing and Land Assembly, the federal government bears up to 75 per cent of the cost. The province assumes the rest, but may call on the municipality to put up part of their share," the M.P. said.

NOW WORKABLE

This, Mr. Barnett feels, has at last made practical and workable the idea of municipality sponsored housing, which under the new federal regulations may be of two forms.

They may be subsidized, with the rents related to the incomes of the tenants, or they may be built on a full-recovery basis, with rents set to amortize the capital cost over a period of time.

POINT SYSTEM

These are the condition of the present accommodation of the prospective tenant, the number in the family, the relation of rental to income, emergency conditions, and involuntary separation, which Mr. Barnett explained as a situation where members of a family had to be separated due to lack of accommodation.

RENEWAL

Not only that, Mr. Barnett pointed out, but under new amendments to the housing act, provision is made for renewal of existing homes in urban and renewal areas.

Houses in depressed areas may thus be improved, either by individual owners, or the owners of rental projects in depressed areas designated for urban renewal may also get help this way.

Although new regulations provide much wider scope, he said, anything in the way of subsidized housing can only be instigated at local municipal levels.

Duncan, North Cowichan

Provincial Help Requested For Ambulances

DUNCAN — The ambulance system in British Columbia came under fire when the city of Duncan and North Cowichan municipal councils met jointly to discuss a request from the Duncan Kiwanis Ambulance Society.

Earlier this week the city and North Cowichan received requests for financial assistance from the society amounting to $6,000 towards a new ambulance plus an annual grant of $3,000.

PROVINCIAL AID

North Cowichan Coun. Elaine Dobbyn said "instead of spending money on new roads and bridges in preparation for an election, the provincial government should be pushed hard to subsidise ambulances in the entire province."

"I agree with Mrs. Dobbyn," said Ald. Robert Mason. Mrs. Dobbyn said "another election will come up soon and the government is a bit touchy and we have to hit them as hard as we can."

She said both councils should write letters to the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service demanding the underwriting of the capital cost for all ambulances in the province.

Nevertheless, before the letters are written both councils will discuss the resolution that was made at the joint meeting whereby both councils would match dollar for dollar whatever the ambulance society can raise up to $12,000.

Remand For Pair

DUNCAN — Paul Schultz, Seattle, Ronald Hill, Victoria, charged with being in possession of burglar tools with intent, were remanded for eight days.

A third man, Ronald Alexander Curren of Victoria, charged with the same offence, elected to be tried by a magistrate and pleaded not guilty.

He also was remanded for eight days.

In Regional College

Theatre Sought By Arts Council

NANAIMO — Members of Central Vancouver Island Arts Council Friday called for a $250,000 theatre to be part of the proposed regional college.

Mrs. Robert Creigton, president of the council, said a letter has been sent to the college coordination committee requesting a 1,000 seat theatre as an initial building.

FURNISHINGS

The council is willing to finance certain furnishings for the theatre, curtains, seats, and lights.

Mrs. Creighton said the council has detailed plans, and expects the $250,000, to cover only the basic cost of construction.

TO SEAT 1,000

The plans include an orchestra pit, 50 by 40 foot stage, 700 seats on the main floor, and 300 seats in the balcony.

FOR TAXPAYERS

"We don't care where it goes, but we want a theatre as part of the college, because then it becomes part of the responsibility of every taxpayer in the college area," Mrs. Creighton said.

Chairman of the theatre fund in Nanaimo Arnold Olsen, has agreed money already put aside can be used for the proposed theatre.

TO BE EXPANDED

The council wants the building to be designed so that additions can be made in future years.

Members of the council favoring the scheme are Nanaimo Symphony Society, Overture Concert Association, Nanaimo School Bands Association, Nanaimo Music Festival, Nanaimo Little Theatre, St. Peter's Players, plus leading citizens in the community.

The central arts council covers an area from Ladysmith to Qualicum.

The grants made are equal to general and local sales taxes which would be applied to B.C. Hydro property, plus one per cent revenue from sale of electricity and revenue.

Girl 'Posties' Uphold Tradition in Valley

PORT ALBERNI — "We'd never have made it off the ground this Christmas without the girls," said Port Alberni postal supervisor Vince Glenn, referring to his four girl "posties", busy tramping routes in the Valley, delivering the mail.

The old tradition the mail must go through is being faithfully kept by the feminine foursome, although there have been some changes since they started last Monday.

"One girl was scared off by the dogs . . . she quit," the supervisor explained.

"One other decided it was not for her, but we have a replacement, and we expect those now on the job will be kept on right over the busy season. They're doing fine."

The girls themselves thoroughly enjoy the work, although they admit the bags are heavy to start with.

"One good thing, they get lighter as the day goes by," said Iris Surry, philsophically.

If anyone is looking for stocking stuffers for the girls, a large bottle of foot balm, and a set of foam rubber insoles might be the ideal solution.

Unretiring Joe Sutton

Religion, Mines—And a Hand to Youth

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO — Most people think of Joe Sutton as a cantankerous old codger who always leads the fight to halt the slightest rise in public spending.

Joe doesn't mind.

His battle to cut the tax burden on pensioners follows a long life rich in the events that shaped his rough and tumble views.

He was born in 1878 in the small mining town of Hednesford, in Staffordshire; today he is president of the largest branch of the Old Age Pensioners Association in the province.

"My father was a heavy drinker; we had to keep moving to escape the police, because of this I never passed a grade in school," Joe said.

"My father insisted at 11 years of age I should find employment, and so I was employed down the coal mines."

He became a lay preacher and entered the Salvation Army as an officer cadet.

He was selected to be a member of the guard at the funeral of General Bramwell Booth, founder of the Salvation Army.

Later he passed his examinations to become an officer and also won a competition in writing a story on a religious theme.

* * *

Soon he found himself involved in the turmoil of the union movement, and at one time was president of the 45,000 man Derbyshire local.

In 1912 he came to Canada and arrived at Fernie, where he expected he would be just another anonymous miner.

Walking down the street he found he was already well known; miners who had emigrated earlier from England knew the name of Joe Sutton well.

After a few months in the interior he came to Nanaimo, where he has lived ever since.

As soon as he got to Nanaimo he took up the fight to get better conditions for the miners.

During his seven-year term as miners' union president the company's code of rules were changed.

An appearance in court came next, when he met with an accident in the old Protection mine, because no one could decide which rules should decide his case, the company's, or the coal miners' Regulations Act.

Joe was vindicated, and from then on the Act governed compensation in accidents.

Representation for the miners' widows at inquests was another victory, followed by representation on the hospital board for the miners.

"The hospital needed money and George Pearson, who was on the hospital board, asked for a meeting with the men. It was arranged, and Mr. Pearson was told that no money would be paid until the workers had a seat on the hospital."

In 1929 he came out of the mines to dedicate his life to youth and started by opening the Comox Road playground.

One of his most famous protegees is Norm Baker.

"He used to get me up at two or three in the morning just to go and practise."

In 1960 came the culmination to a lifetime of interest in sport when the Hadassah Club searched B.C. for the man who had done most for youth in the province.

At 87 Joe is far from retiring and taking it easy. Several times a week he walks into town. At any public forum on political affairs he's asking questions of candidates, trying to ensure public money is not wasted.

* * *

He is a champion among letter-to-the-editor writers, and leading raffle - ticket seller among the pensioners.

Until last year he was the best known Santa Claus in the Nanaimo area.

Margaret Laurence

Novels' Strength Drawn From Interest in People

By CAROL KENNEDY

PENN, England (CP)—Margaret Laurence looked out at the cosy wooded Buckinghamshire countryside, so far removed in scale and spirit from the Manitoba prairies where she grew up, and talked of her writing and the influences that shaped it.

Behind her, ranged on two shelves, gleamed the bindings of different editions of the four books that in five years have established this dark-haired, 39-year-old mother of two as a Canadian writer of rare promise and productivity.

As she spoke—hesitantly at first, as if shy of expressing beliefs that might sound pretentious in words—it became clear that the strength of her novels springs from a deep, compassionate interest in people as individuals.

"If I believe anything, it's in the unique quality of human life, and it has to be observed in terms of one by one. I don't think there is such a thing as 'the masses.'"

What critics have called her "rare perception of life" has distinguished all her work—her widely-praised first novel, This Side Jordan, a collection of West African short stories entitled The Tomorrow-Tamer, her Somaliland travel book The Prophet's Camel Bell and above all her 1964 novel The Stone Angel. This was her first novel with a Canadian setting and the book that has given her most satisfaction.

RAVE RECEPTION

A powerful tale of an authoritarian 90-year-old woman reliving her past in a small Canadian prairie community as death approaches, it won a rave reception from critics on both sides of the Atlantic. It also triumphantly proved to the former Margaret Wemyss of Neepawa, Man., that she could write convincingly about her homeland and her own people.

She had already won wide acclaim for her sensitive understanding of the African temperament in the stories she wrote while living in Ghana and Somaliland with her civil engineer husband—a gift she describes as "mostly an intuitive thing."

"I think I went about as far as I could in getting under the skin of the African characters, if indeed I did. Ultimately one's own people are what one knows best, or should."

BOOK JUST FINISHED

Having made this breakthrough, her next novels will explore Canadian themes further. The morning of our interview in her rambling, grey stucco home she had just sent off her latest manuscript, a short novel of 60,000 words, to her London publisher.

The fruit of eight months' work, it has a Canadian prairie setting similar to that of "The Stone Angel." Like the earlier book, it explores one main character in depth, and the plot again will be dominated by the theme that runs like a strong thread through all Margaret Laurence's fiction—the struggle of the individual to break free from the destructive influences of his or her past, whether religious, family or environmental.

NATURE OF FREEDOM

"I guess I'm obsessed with the nature of freedom," she said thoughtfully. Then, with a flash of amusement: "That sounds very pretentious, doesn't it?"

Margaret Laurence has none of the somewhat grandiose concepts of a novelist's art that some authors produce for interviews. She speaks with blunt honesty.

"Someone—I think it was Mordecai Richler—said the only responsibility of the novelist is that he shouldn't bore the reader. I agree with that.

"What I really care about as a novelist is whether the character comes across as a convincing, paradoxical human being."

Her novels spring initially from characters rather than abstract ideas. She usually has the bare bones of the plot in mind when she starts to write, though this can change as the characters assume a life of their own.

Her daily writing routine starts immediately after David, 10, and Jocelyn, 13 go to school. She writes in longhand in scribblers, "anywhere where it's warm," often at the kitchen table.

ACT OF FAITH

She finds it hard to get started, but once away writes "compulsively," and is always reluctant to stop.

"I don't want to sound mystical about this, but writing a novel is, well, an act of faith in oneself . . . you can only write what is in you to begin with. Either it's there or it isn't."

She rarely reads over her previous work until the completed novel is ready for redrafting—and usually cutting—on the typewriter.

TOO MUCH TALK

Speaking of Canadian writing, Mrs. Laurence said she was encouraged by the new horizons opening up, with Canadian publishers becoming "more venturesome" and a gradual withering-away of self-consciously Canadian epics—"what I call the Maple Leaf Forever school."

"What really upsets me about Canada is all this sitting around in conferences worrying whether we have a culture or a literature—we're not going to get either by talking about it."

She started writing at the age of eight and her mother, a school teacher, was her first critic. "She never laughed, which must have been quite a strain."

After graduating from the University of Manitoba in 1947 she reported and reviewed books for the short-lived co-operative paper the Winnipeg Citizen. She still does occasional free-lance work for British publications.

Her first published story, The Drummer of all the world, based on her West African experiences, appeared in Queen's Quarterly in 1956 and was later included in The Tomorrow-Tamer.

NOW PESSIMISTIC

This Side Jordan, which won a $1,000 award for the best first novel by a Canadian and was a Book Society Recommendation in England, was the sympathetic story of Nathaniel Amegbe, a Ghanaian school teacher striving to come to terms with his rejected tribal past, set against the finely-observed backdrop of a black-and-white society in ferment on the eve of national independence.

Looking back, Mrs. Laurence said she had been a "liberal humanist" then, believing all problems could be solved by people of good faith.

"As I grow older I'm becoming more pessimistic. People seem less life-oriented. I'm coming to believe we may very well blow ourselves up one day."

Hindus Fear China

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

According to ancient mythology, the Himalayan mountains are the home of Lord Shiva, one of the gods in the Hindu trinity. There are many famous Hindu temples all along the 2,500-mile frontier between India and China.

Hindu monks have thought up a novel way to protest Peking's presence in the Himalayas and symbolize India's determination to resist further aggression.

SEVEN MONKS

A group of seven monks propose to stay on in the 11,000-foot-high Badrinath temple throughout the winter. This will pose endurance problems of the first magnitude. The vigil-keepers have ignored warnings of heavy snowfalls, avalanches and marauding Himalayan bears.

Swami Anand, 65-year-old leader of the group, said: "Come what may, we will not come down from Badrinath before the end of next April."

HOLY LAND

"China must realize that she must leave the Himalayas, every inch of which is sacred Hindu territory," he said, claiming that according to ancient scriptures the whole of Tibet was once Hindu country.

China has dug-in positions less than 40 miles from Badrinath. The Indians have also heavily fortified the passes in the area.

HARD TO CRACK

Swami Anand said that three years ago a Peking radio broadcast claimed that Badrinath fell within Chinese jurisdiction.

"The reds want to demoralize us," he said. "We must show that the Hindu spirit is hard to crack."

Sockeye Run Predicted

BELLINGHAM (AP) — The International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission has forecast a sockeye run of 3,000,000 fish next year and estimated U.S. and Canadian fishermen would catch between 700,000 and 800,000 for each nation.

The prediction matched the run for this season, which had been predicted accurately last year. The U.S. catch was 1,026,000 sockeye; Canadians caught 1,039,000.

Hairy Problem Of Integration Faces Forces

By BOB PETHICK

Integration of the armed forces may be a great thing from the defence minister's point of view but for the rank and file it presents problems.

According to an item in the combined forces magazine Sentinel, one of the main problems is creating one set of regulations to govern three forces—and that isn't easy.

One of the big problems was a hairy one but the regulations committee, with elaborate passing work, managed to dump the problem into the chief of staff's lap.

SNEAKY RULING

In the navy, beards are permitted but moustaches are not, while in the army and air force moustaches are on the approved list and beards aren't.

So the sneaky ruling reads "wearing of beards and moustaches shall be subject to any restrictions ordered by the Chief of Defence staff"—This makes the chief a sort of whisker watcher.

Another regulation to sadden the hearts of soldiers and airmen is they won't receive rum allowance the way the navy does unless they serve at sea, which is unlikely in practically all cases.

But the navy can breath a sigh of relief because at least the committee were sports enough to continue the long-standing rum ration practice.

He's Had Bellyful Of Christmas, Commercialism

TORONTO (CP)—The flashing colored lights outside John Tames's home here Thursday were Christmassy—but their message—Humbug—wasn't.

"I've had a bellyful of Christmas commercialism. Every year I'm pressured into buying $150 worth of gifts. Frankly, there's as much Christianity and brotherhood in Christmas as there is in a retailer's fire sale," he said.

He said it's in memory of Scrooge, the miser in Charles Dickens's novel A Christmas Carol, terming the sign his Big Protest.

The father of two girls added: "Nobody has the guts to protest. It's like motherhood: You can't rock the boat.

"Even the churches have a vested interest. They don't want to rock the boat. What's happened to all the celebration for Christ's birthday?"

Lengthy Dispute Now Over

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—The Kohler company and the United Auto Workers Union announced Friday they have reached a final agreement settling their 11½-year dispute.

Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the UAW, told a press conference that the firm will pay $3,000,000 in back wages and $1,500,000 to reinstate pensions.

Vehicle Hits House

A car travelled 90 feet before smashing into a house at Shelbourne and McRae, in a spectacular traffic accident at 11:25 p.m. Thursday.

About $500 damage was done to the house at 3296 Shelbourne owned by Mrs. Esther Brownlee.

A car driven by Sydney Worboys, 1610 Midgard, was in collision with another driven by Lewis Rosaner, 2945 Austin.

Police said Mr. Worboys' car then travelled 90 feet to the house. Allison Worboys, of the same address, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital for abrasions to both knees.

Rhodesia

Bank's Loss Hidden

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Ian Smith's government has ordered the Rhodesian Reserve Bank to stop publishing its weekly statement of assets and liabilities, showing the value of foreign assets.

The latest figures for the week ending Dec. 3 should have been published Thursday.

However, a statement issued today by the bank's newly-appointed chief cashier, C. H. Roberts, said the bank had been directed to stop publishing them under the emergency regulations.

The last weekly statement, published Dec. 9, showed gold and foreign assets Nov. 26 at £21,630,000 ($64,800,000)—a drop of about £7,000,000 ($21,000,000) or 25 per cent since the end of September.

The financial correspondent of the Rhodesia Herald wrote Friday that the drop in the reserves was attributable partly to efforts by the commercial banks to repay external loans and partly by two movements in anticipation of the unilateral declaration of independence—an import buildup and the switching of non-resident funds where possible to London from Salisbury.

Cabinet newcomers Marchand, Turner, Winters, Cote, Greene

He appointed five new members to fill vacancies created by electoral defeats and resignations and shuffled the duties of eight ministers.

Newcomers to the cabinet are:

- ● Robert H. Winters, a former Liberal cabinet minister back in politics after an eight-year absence, who will take over the big trade portfolio early in 1966.
- ● Jean Marchand, 47, the former Quebec labor leader, who takes over as immigration minister.
- ● J. J. Greene, 45, from Renfrew South, moving into agriculture.
- ● Jean-Pierre Cote, 39, from Longueuil, becoming post-master-general.
- ● John Turner, 36, Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George, who will be a minister without portfolio.

Mr. Pearson, speaking at a press conference, said he also was proposing a far-reaching re-organization of the cabinet structure designed to adapt government machinery to new conditions and changing needs.

'Right Wing To Fore'

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson has disappointed French Canada and doomed the rest of the nation to economic drifting, former Conservative cabinet minister Alvin Hamilton charged last night.

He spoke on behalf of his party about the cabinet re-organization and appointments announced by the prime minister yesterday. Opposition leader Diefenbaker is on a holiday cruise in the Caribbean.

New Democrat Leader Tommy Douglas said Mr. Pearson has strengthened the "right wing element" of the cabinet.

He said the appointment of Mitchell Sharp as finance minister and Robert Winters as trade and commerce minister will "only serve to hasten American control of the Canadian economy."

He described Mr. Sharp and Mr. Winters as "continentalists" as opposed to former finance minister Walter Gordon whom he said was a "nationalist."

OLD BUS

"The prime minister has had the old bus overhauled. He's tacked on a few spare parts and replaced a flat tire. But the main test of whether it will work is still the man behind the wheel.

"It depends on the prime minister's ability to give direction to the government, set goals for it to follow, and ride herd on its ministers, to make sure they meet these goals," he said.

Mr. Douglas welcomed the establishment of the manpower department, as did Mr. Hamilton. Both said it should have been done long ago.

MAJOR POST

Mr. Hamilton said both new portfolios (manpower and resources and energy) were badly needed, but neither will satisfy the demands of the Quebec in-

Champs Home Today

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 7 space champions boned up on tricky manoeuvres vital to a safe return to earth, then settled down for a long night's rest before a fiery homecoming today from man's longest space voyage.

Confident their tiny spacecraft's pesky electrical system will not fail, U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr. streaked into the 14th day of tracking network.

With 5,000,000 miles of space travel behind them, the two astronauts came down the home stretch feeling good and jovial.

"We're all quite impressed with how good you guys sound today," mission control advised them.

"We feel a lot better. . . ." Borman answered.

Dr. Charles Berry, the flight's medical director, said that from medical data relayed from the spacecraft to ground Borman and Lovell seemed in good health.

And, Berry said he felt that even though neither man has taken a step since climbing into the small spacecraft Dec. 4, They would be able to walk once on deck of the recovery ship.

Borman, the command pilot, is to fire his retro-rockets at 8:28 a.m. EST as the spacecraft heads over the Pacific on the 206th trip around the world. Earth's gravity will then grip the speeding craft for its splashdown 37 minutes later.

* * *

The pilots spent much of the day tidying up the craft, stowing equipment and other things used for the last two weeks.

Borman and Lovell took the day off at mid-afternoon and plan to be up and ready early for the end of their voyage.

"See you in the morning," Borman said before signing off for the day.

How the record — breaking astronauts look, feel and act after man's longest exposure to the strange world of space can provide the answer to a critical question: Can man live and work during great periods of time in the weightless environment?

The U.S. space agency released some of the movies and still pictures taken of the dramatic meeting by Gemini 6 pilots, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford.

The color movies depict the apparent ease with which the two black-and-white ships flew gracefully through space six to 10 feet from each other at 17,500 miles an hour.

* * *

For awhile, the Gemini 7 pilots, holders of every manned spaceflight record, feared a balky fuel cell system that provides electricity aboard the spacecraft might force them home a day early.

Monitors kept a close eye on the system throughout the night while the astronauts slept, then decided the problem was not serious enough to curtail the flight.

Bitter Twist to War

Hill Tribes Revolt Against Saigon

SAIGON (UPI)—A tribal rebellion spread through the central highlands today and at least one American special forces camp was reported in rebel hands.

The revolt began late Friday night when mountain tribesmen, seeking autonomy, seized Gia Nghia, capital of Quang Duc province, about 110 miles northeast of Saigon, without wiring a shot.

Today the revolt spread to Pleiku and Pho Bon provinces and possibly to other areas.

"There has been fighting in numerous areas between the government and rebel forces and casualties thus far are considerable, government sources said.

Tribesmen also rebelled in at least three special forces camps. One, located at La Thien, fell to the rebels.

The situation at the other two camps, at Plei Mrong and Plei Djereng in Pleiku province, remained unclear.

Many of the special forces camps the United States has established in the central mountains employs hill tribesmen as scouts and strike forces to harrass the Communists.

The rebels, or at least some of them, were believed using American-supplied weapons.

Early today it was reported the tribesmen had lowered their flag at Gia Nghia and agreed to negotiate. But later reports indicated that fighting could break out any moment.

A Vietnamese military source said government soldiers were in position to lay siege to the provincial capital.

Pullout Demand Dropped

U.S. MULLS HANOI BID

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has received through intermediaries a conditional offer from President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam to enter into negotiations for a peaceful settlement of the Vietnamese war.

Two conditions laid down by Ho now appear to U.S. officials here to be unacceptable. State Secretary Dean Rusk, at Johnson's direction, is seeking clarification.

The intermediaries also reported that Hanoi dropped its condition that the U.S. must get out of Viet Nam before negotiations can begin.

The White House said late Friday it has had no indication that North Viet Nam "is ready to conduct unconditional discussions."

Letters Exchanged

An exchange of letters involving Rusk and the Italian foreign minister, Amintore Fanfani, also president of the United Nations General Assembly, was released by the state department Friday.

Fanfani's letter, addressed to Johnson, reported the conditional peace offer which specified that a ceasefire would have to precede negotiations and appeared to require that the U.S. also would have to accept in advance Communist settlement terms as the basis for negotiations.

Shortly after the state department made the disclosure Johnson, at a Christmas tree lighting ceremony, said: "We declare once more our desire to discuss an honorable peace in Viet Nam." "We know that nothing is to be gained by further delay in talking."

The White House comment and Rusk's letter to Fanfani made clear that United States leaders are skeptical of the Hanoi offer. But officials said they will make every effort to arrive at an acceptable arrangement for negotiation.

In his letter dated Nov. 20, Fanfani reported that on Nov. 11 two Italians had met in Hanoi with President Ho and North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, and had been told that the North Vietnamese leaders strongly desired a peaceful solution to the war in Viet Nam.

Fanfani then reported a summary of the conditions and said he had been advised in writing by the intermediaries that "the government in Hanoi is prepared to initiate negotiations without first requiring actual withdrawal of the American troops" from South Viet Nam.

Four Points

Ho was quoted in Fanfani's report as saying "I am prepared to go anywhere; to meet anyone."

The advance Communist settlement terms, the so-called "four points," were laid down in March by the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong. In them, the Front demanded the United States withdraw all troops, material and bases from South Viet Nam; cancel its military alliance with Saigon; cease "all acts of war" against North Viet Nam; and then settle the dispute "in accordance with the program (of the Viet Cong) without any foreign interference.

Ho said that it would be necessary to have in advance "a declaration according to which the Geneva Agreements of 1954 will be taken as the basis for the negotiation."

The Geneva Agreements established the states of Viet Nam Laos and Cambodia in former French Indochina. They specified that those states were to be independent and free of foreign alliances.

A provision for the unification of North and South Viet Nam never was fulfilled.

'I Am Not Perfect'

Both candidates were at their persuasive best.

"Here I am such as I am," the 75-year-old de Gaulle said.

"I do not say I am perfect and that I am not my age. I in no way claim to know everything or to be able to do everything . . . but history has willed that together with the French people I have succeeded in certain undertakings . . ."

Mitterrand, 49-year-old Socialist and veteran politician, also told the voters the choice is clear. For him it was a decision between the "personal power" exercised for the last seven years by de Gaulle and a "republican regime" of all citizens.

Rhodesia

Britain Cuts Oil Flow

LONDON (CP)—Britain imposed an oil embargo on the breakaway colony of Rhodesia Friday, after long deliberation.

It was the harshest measure yet against the white-minority regime of Ian Smith, which unilaterally declared itself independent Nov. 11. The U.S. was expected to join shortly in the crippling embargo. Rhodesia, which imports its oil, uses about 280,000 tons a year.

The order establishes stiff fines and prison sentences for any British national supplying or helping to supply oil to Rhodesia. Britain also set up an RAF airlift to keep oil moving to copper-producing, landlocked Zambia, which has been getting its oil from neighboring Rhodesia. The airlift has already begun.

'Right Step' Say Africans

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — The news that Britain has imposed an oil embargo against Rhodesia was welcomed by African delegates here as a step in the right direction.

Other reaction was less than whole-hearted, however. A diplomat, regarded as one of Britain's severest critics here, said: "It is not all that we want, but it is something."

500 Fund's Grand Turkey Shoot

They're Gunning for Birds Today

Today is the day for scatter-gunners to shoulder their pieces and head for the Victoria Gun Club grounds on Metchosin Road at Albert Head.

The club has invited the public to participate in its annual turkey shoot for The Daily Colonist 500 Fund.

The shoot starts at 10 a.m. today and Sunday and each day ends when the last shooter leaves.

The club has provided 350 turkeys and 50 hams as prizes for the best shots in five classes.

There are classes for everyone from the expert to the gun-shy. Even those who don't own their own shotguns can participate—the club will provide the weapons.

Last year the club raised $300 for the fund, now in its ninth year. Every year the 500 poorest families in Greater Victoria receive from the fund an even share of the total, just before Christmas, to spend as they please.
